MAX SCHMELING'S BACK FRACTURED IN LOUIS BATTLE

German Rests in Hospital; Diagnosis Reveals Injury Is Not as Serious as First Reported.

CLAIM OF FOUL QUICKLY KILLED

Defeat Leaves Fighter Doubtful Future, Say Experts After Battle.

By ALAN GOULD.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—

The scene shifted abruptly today from the prize ring to the hospital, from the roar of the crowd to the seclusion of a white-walled room where Germany's Max Schmeling, victim of the crushing fists of Joe Louis, lay with one small bone in his back fractured and his hopes of a fistic conquest shattered.

Thus, melodramatically, did the shortest, most one-sided fight in heavyweight championship history develop into the "battle of the cracked rib," climaxing the spectacular one-round knockout of the challenger in pugilism's latest million-dollar show and overshadowing negotiations to match the dusky titleholder next with another exchampion and exvict, Max Baer, this September.

Schmeling's injury, though neither critical nor so serious as at first believed, was diagnosed as a fracture of the left transverse process of the third lumbar vertebra. The transverse process is a small, thumb-like knob of bone, sprouting from each side of the vertebrae and serving as a peg to which the back muscles are attached.

It was at first believed the transverse processes of two vertebrae were fractured but re-examination of X-ray plates disclosed the single break. The possibility of a hemorrhage in the kidney region, likewise caused early apprehension but no complications developed during the day. The third of three bulletins issued, at the Polytechnic hospital, indicated at 4:30 p. m. (Atlanta time), that Schmeling was resting comfortably and in no danger.

Not only was Schmeling's temperature and respiration both described as normal but he was sufficiently self-possessed to demand a shave while his associates, in-

Two Persons Killed In Georgia Crashes

By the Associated Press.

At least two fatalities were charged against Georgia highway accidents during the last 24 hours. Emory Johnson, 21, of Warren, succumbed in an Augusta hospital yesterday, shortly after he had been injured in an auto collision near Warren.

At Bainbridge, a child was killed and four other persons injured when their automobile overturned late Wednesday. Sheriff W. J. Catledge, of Decatur county, said the child was June Meredith, 9. He listed the injured as Mrs. Eugene Meredith, the mother; Walter Meredith, 17, a brother; Willie Lynn, 45, and Willie Johnson, chauffeur.

General S. D. Embick Named 4th Corps Area Commander

Will Succeed Moseley on His Retirement September 1.

By L. A. FARRELL, Constitution Staff Writer.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Major General Stanley D. Embick, at present deputy chief of staff of the army, today was named to succeed Major General George Van Horn Moseley as commanding officer of the fourth corps area with headquarters in Atlanta, upon the latter's retirement September 1.

The new corps area commander will be in Atlanta a week or two before General Moseley's retirement to familiarize himself with the situation in the southeast. His successor as deputy chief of staff has not been named.

Announcement of General Embick's appointment was given to The Constitution exclusively today by Secretary of War Harry H. Woodring.

"In General Embick, Atlanta is getting one of the outstanding soldiers in the army," Secretary Woodring said.

"We are reluctant to give him up here in the War Department, but his four-year tour has expired and the Atlanta appointment is one which will continue him in an important military capacity. We think the people of the fourth corps area will find General Embick a worthy successor to the great generals who have commanded the area in the past."

General Embick, who was in the secretary's office when the appointment was announced, said he is "most happy to return to Atlanta. He served at Fort McPherson briefly as a second lieutenant in 1899, upon his return from the Spanish-American War."

Adjutant General John E. Stoddard, of Georgia, who was in Washington when the appointment was announced, said he would be sent to Georgia next week to work out details of the Money for Two Farmers' Markets in Atlanta and Macon Is Also Sought.

By Constitution Special Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—Georgia today was assured of an immediate start on its portion of the federal recovery program when Governor Rivers and a delegation of state officials obtained approval of a program calling for completion of the University System building projects and for new school buildings which may aggregate $16,000,000.

Works Progress Administrator Harry L. Hopkins assured the Governor and Welfare Director Lamar Murdaugh of his "fullest cooperation" in the $15,000,000 eleemosynary building program, announcing that a special engineer would be sent to Georgia next week to work out details of the

OFFICIALS OF PWA ASKED TO RETURN

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—PWA invited all its state administrators and inspectors today to rejoin its staff.

Many of these men have been out of PWA since the administrative set-up was changed months ago from a state to a regional basis.

Under the new spending program, it was said, PWA needs the "expert advice" of its former employees. The state set-ups will not be restored, but the men rehired will assist the regional directors.

program with R. L. MacDougall, Georgia WPA engineer.

The Governor made it clear that only that portion of the new building program tying up with the $16,000,000 Georgia is to furnish out of the discounted W. & A. rentals is to be given immediate consideration. The balance of the program, costing between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000, is to come later.

Coarse Food Makes A Man, Italians Told

MILAN, June 23.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini's Popolo D'Italia answered Italians' complaints over coarse bread today with the assertion it was better for health and manly vigor.

The new bread made by government order—with flour containing 20 per cent corn flour or other substitutes because of Italy's diminished wheat crop and self-sufficiency program, was compared by the newspaper to the bread of the world-conquering ancient Romans.

Not only is it more nourishing, the paper stated, but it produces greater energy for reproductive purposes and is therefore important to the welfare and destiny of the race.

Seven Oil Workers Killed in Explosion

HOBBES, N. M., June 23.—(AP)—Seven oil well workers were killed and four seriously injured near here late today when a nitroglycerin charge with which they were preparing to "shoot" a well exploded prematurely.

Details of the blast were not immediately available, as all witnesses at the scene were either killed or critically injured. Victims were so badly mangled and seared that identification was difficult.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt left here by train at 10:07 p. m. (Atlanta time) for Washington.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—To students of political events, President Roosevelt's radio speech tomorrow night appears to be the beginning of a fast and furious personal drive with a two-fold purpose.

The aim, according to informed opinion here, is to stimulate an economic upturn before the November elections, and also to offset anti-New Deal political trends from strife within the Democratic party.

Republican spokesmen and even some Democrats critical of Roosevelt policies have called the 1937-38 business slump the "Roosevelt depression." Backed by the multi-billion dollar relief and pump-priming measure, Mr. Roosevelt appears to be embarking on a trans-continental campaign to convince the country that another period of recovery is at hand.

Zig-Zag Tour.

Mr. Roosevelt's speech at 9:30 o'clock, Atlanta time, tomorrow night, is expected to be devoted especially to an exposition of the lending-spending program. Between the time of that speech, and the President's embarkation on the west coast July 12 for a fishing cruise home, he will be front page news almost every day. He will be heard nationally and seen locally from New York to San Francisco over a zig-zag course that will take him into a dozen states.

A new chapter of New Deal history may be written by the President in that three weeks or so. All

Cab Rate Outside City Is Increased 25 Cents

Taxicab rates outside the city limits have been increased 25 cents per mile in addition to the meter rate, A. L. Belle Isle, president of the cab company, said yesterday.

Belle Isle asserted the company could not operate its cabs outside the city limits profitably at the meter rate of four miles for 30 cents. The new charge went into effect several days ago, he said.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Ex- pected to Have Super- vision of Film.

By HAROLD HEFFERMAN.

(Copyright, 1938, by The Constitution and North American Newspaper Alliance, Inc.)

HOLLYWOOD, June 23.—Clark Gable and Norma Shearer appeared today to be cinch nominations as an all-star battery to carry the colors of "Gone With the Wind" into the screen field when the picture goes into production, probably next December.

This was forecast through several conferences during the last 48 hours between David O. Selznick, owner of screen rights to the much-delayed Margaret Mitchell story, and Louis B. Mayer, general manager of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

When final details are ironed out, MGM is expected to have complete supervision over the production, casting and releasing of the film. Miss Shearer, a heavy stockholder in MGM through the legacy of her late husband, Irving Thalberg, has always been a dark horse candidate for the Scarlett O'Hara part. It is believed her desire to capture the heroine plum had much to do with opening of the Selznick-MGM negotiations, which fell flat several months ago.

Gable Reading Script.

Between takes of his current picture, Gable admitted he had been reading the script of "Gone With the Wind" for the past week, but stubbornly reiterated his personal opposition to playing the Rhett Butler part.

"Naturally, I'll do what they say," he declared, "but, get this straight: I'm still fighting against it—and for the same reason. Any actor who plays it will be on the

HOOVER ARTICLES CITED IN SPY CASE

Court Tilt To Prevent Ex-Agent From Printing Series Is Unprecedented.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Former G-man Leon G. Turrou today offered magazine articles signed by his recent boss, J. Edgar Hoover, to prove his contention that he is privileged to publish what he uncovered about foreign spies in the United States.

He attached the articles to an affidavit opposing the government's application for a temporary injunction to restrain the New York Post from publishing Turrou's articles on the current spy hunt, which he directed until his resignation Monday. Eighteen individuals were indicted as spy suspects.

"There exists no pledge, no agreement, no rule, no statute and no regulation which forbids publishing any of the facts acquired by me in the course of my investigation or facts testified to by me as a witness before the federal grand jury," the ace sleuth's affidavit stated.

Denies "Giveaway."

The affidavit denied Turrou would publish anything that would hinder the government's investigation. Turrou said he had been advised the case was without precedent.

After a long debate on freedom of the press, contempt of court and obstruction of justice, Federal Judge Hulbert reserved decision. A temporary restraining order was continued.

New Witness Tells of Seeing Men in Two Cars Near Scene of Crime.

Police and investigators seeking to solve the mystery of the deaths of Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Peek early this (Friday) morning said that an expected "break" in the case had failed to materialize. After following what they believed to be a "direct lead" for many hours, the authorities became convinced that they were on the wrong track.

A member of the investigating force said they questioned several persons, including one whom they believed could give them a direct "lead." But at an early hour this morning this one particular person convinced authorities beyond any doubt that he did not, in any particular, have knowledge of the crime.

Reports by investigators earlier in the day indicated the person being sought might have attended the double rites for the couple attended by 500 persons yesterday afternoon at Fortified Hills Baptist church.

Authorities said their search today would center upon finding a clue to the rope found around the neck of Mrs. Peek.

Placed at Bolton.

Earlier reports of possibility of an arrest were believed linked with new knowledge that Mr. and Mrs. Peek left the Riverview inn, at Bolton, a roadside restaurant, about 9 o'clock Monday night with a young man and a young woman.

It was not indicated that the young man sought was the person who talked with the Peeks in the restaurant, however.

Mrs. Marie Bond, operator of the inn, situated at the Chattahoochee bridge; her daughter, Althea Bond, 14, and Miss Nellie Cain, a waitress, attended the funeral services in an effort to identify the mysterious young couple.

Although they stood outside the door of the church and scanned the faces of persons both leaving and entering, they said they did

Textile Executive Holds Congress Adjournment Aid to Business—Westerners' Aid Urged in Rail Rate Fight.

By Jack Spalding III

The adjournment of congress has contributed largely to the present optimism in business circles, in the opinion of Floyd Jefferson, textile executive, who is spending a few days in Atlanta.

"Whether people are in accord with the action of the last congress or not, its adjournment brings an end to controversial subjects," he said. "With their acts no longer subject to debate, we are off the anxious seat."

Mr. Jefferson is a partner in the firm of Iselin Jefferson Company, cotton cloth commission merchants of New York city. He is chairman of the board of directors of the Fitzgerald Cotton Mills in Fitzgerald, Ga., and a director of the Exposition Mills here. His firm represents 40 cotton mills throughout the south.

AID OF WEST URGED IN RAIL RATE FIGHT
Ben Sullivan, Washington, D. C., attorney, suggested yesterday that co-operation with westerners in congress would be the best way to get rid of freight rates discriminatory to the southeast.

"They had, or maybe still have, the same trouble," he said. "I remember Senator Smith Brookhart, of Iowa, filling pages of the Congressional Record with the inequality of the long and short haul rates then in effect in the west and middlewest."

"In those days, it cost less to ship freight from New York to Spokane, Wash., than it did to ship from New York to Iowa. I don't know exactly what they did about it, but they did something. If the bill to lower freight rates in the south gets through, he thinks it will be with the help of the western representatives, because of a 'feeling of sympathy.'" summer, and recently it's been Miami Beach.

"We used to stop in Charleston and places like that," said Miss Mary Jack, "but we got very weary of wrought iron balconies, columns and old doorways. So now we go straight through, and the fewer old homes we see the better."

BANKER SAYS HARALSON SOLD FOR MANGHAM

J. L. Eaves is a Buchanan, Ga., banker, farmer, and clerk of the Haralson county commission. He sat in the lobby of a downtown hotel yesterday, and talked of politics in his county, which is also J. L. Mangham's county.

"The county is solid for Mangham, of course. And they might be able to pull all the west side counties for him. A lot of people are talking like they are going to elect him. Folks in my county were for Hugh Howell before Mangham got in the race."

He said Talmadge will get a lot of country votes in his section. He didn't think Senator George does enough mixing and hand-shaking. He said, "When other candidates hit town they go out and shake hands right and left without any introductions. And that's a mighty good idea."

FLORIDIAN NOT WORRIED ABOUT U. S. SPENDING

Nelson Poynter, general manager of the St. Petersburg, Fla., Times, paused in Atlanta long enough yesterday to greet friends. He is on his way to Washington.

Speaking of the public works bill passed by the last congress, Poynter said, "I am not alarmed about federal credit, as the government spending program is holding down expansion of other public debt, such as states, cities and counties. If we studied the expansion of local credit during the Harding-to-Hoover era, we would find that it expanded more dangerously and rapidly than today... though less spectacularly. It's all under one big tent now, and includes the housing debt, previously held privately. The first mortgage against the United States today is no greater than the previous first, second and third mortgages."

"Florida is a perfect example of a state whose local businesses and municipalities have gone through the washing machine," he said. "We're down to bedrock now, and better able to make our contribution to federal revenue."

MAN SHOT 4 TIMES BY OFFICER HERE

Policeman Charges He Advanced With Knife.

Johnny Johnson, a negro, of 500 Collier street, said to have described himself as "a Communist organizer from New York," was shot four times early yesterday in an encounter with Radio Patrolman E. V. Forrester.

His condition was described as "critical" at Grady hospital, where he underwent an emergency operation. Forrester said he was attempting to disperse a group of negroes at Davis and Mitchell streets, and all obeyed his command to leave except Johnson, who he said started at him with a knife in each hand. Forrester said he shot the negro in both hands and then in the stomach and shoulder when he kept advancing toward him.

THREE MEALS A DAY

HOME TESTED RECIPES

Sally Saver

For a Refreshing "Pick-Me-Up"

When the mercury begins to rise, serve a tall frosty milk drink with butter cookies. Pineapple Cream Float will be a favorite with young and old alike. The ginger ale and pineapple ice give it a professional soda touch, and serving it with colored glass or cellophane sippers adds a note of color that makes it a grand party drink.

Since growing children need at least a quart of milk every day, and grown-ups one pint daily, milk should be used as a foundation for many summer drinks. They are not only nourishing but also refreshing and delicious.

Milk beverages are exceedingly simple to make when plenty of cool milk is kept in the refrigerator. Fruit, fruit juices, honey, mint, eggs and chocolate syrup are a few of the other ingredients which should be kept in the supply cupboard ready for use in making these tempting drinks.

Try a milk shake flavored with any of your favorite fruits. Flavoring the milk with sufficient fruit juices pep up the taste of it for lagging appetites.

A tempting combination is pineapple cream float. The addition of ginger ale to the drink gives it that professional soda touch and the pineapple ice floating on top gives it a party touch. Here is the recipe:

Pineapple Cream Float.
 1 quart ginger ale
 1-2 pint coffee cream
 1 pint pineapple ice
 Combine ginger ale and cream. Pour into eight tall glasses and drop into each several spoonfuls of pineapple ice. Serve at once. Serves eight.

burg, Ga., wins a prize this week for her recipe for blackberry shrub, a cool, refreshing iced drink. You'll want to keep a jar of it in your refrigerator, ready for any call. A tall glass of clinking ice, a sprig of mint and a slice of lemon will make the beverage enticing.

Blackberry Shrubs.
 1 gallon berries.
 1-2 cup vinegar
 1 cup water
 11-2 cups sugar
 Wash berries, mash, and pour water and vinegar over them. Let stand 1 hour and strain.
 To 3 cups of juice, add 11-2 cups of sugar. Don't let it boil but let it come to a simmering point, and seal.
 To serve: Chop glassful of ice fine. To 1 glass add 3 teaspoonful of blackberry shrub and fill rest of glass with water. If you like the drink stronger add more shrub. Use a few drops lemon juice.

Mrs. G. W. Porter, of 666 Elbert street, Atlanta, sends this quick blackberry dessert recipe which you will find a delicious finale to either luncheon or dinner.

Fresh Blackberry Whip.
 Crush one pint of berries, add sugar and lemon juice to flavor. Beat whites of two eggs until stiff and add a pinch of salt; continue beating, gradually adding the crushed berry mixture.
 Put into a shallow glass dish, cover with one white of egg beaten very stiff and sweetened. Put whole berries on top, that have been rolled in finely powdered sugar. Chill, serve at once.

Sally knows you'll want to try these blackberry tarts in place of the familiar blackberry pie, just for a change. Mrs. Lamar Head, 308 W. Washington avenue, East Point, sends her old-time recipe and wins a $1.

Blackberry Tarts.
 (4 Portions)
 Fill muffin pans with plain pastry. Place two (2) tablespoons of mixture on each crust. Cover with pastry strips and bake 20 minutes.

Blackberry Mixture.
 1-2 cup blackberries.
 1-4 cup sugar
 1 T. butter.
 1 T. vinegar.
 1 T. cinnamon.
 Mix the berries, sugar, butter, cut in small pieces, vinegar and cinnamon. Cook, stirring constantly, over a moderate fire for three minutes.

RICE BREAD—Two eggs, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 light teaspoons salt, 1 pint rice flour, 1 1/2 tablespoons baking powder. Beat separately the eggs. Stir into the yolks one tablespoon of butter, salt, rice, flour, milk. Stir two tablespoons of butter, in which to dissolve the baking powder. Stir in beaten whites, then baking powder. Pour into well-greased pan and bake immediately. This requires about three-quarters of an hour, in a pan about three inches deep. Ready to serve, it makes a delicious hot bread, suitable for any meal.

Ed. Note: The fourth year of the War Between the States marked the end of the excitement and enthusiasm that was so evident in the beginning of the conflict. The end of the chapter could be seen. Self-denial and pride was written on every face. To the accompaniment of the cannon that came with the monotonous boom of the surf, that large body of people who are most hurt by war, the women who must stay at home and worry, set their faces to their homely tasks. Caroline Jenkins made use of her knowledge of making tasty dishes from woeful lack of materials and wrote each night that she might not forget that good biscuits can be made with less milk and that molasses can be used in place of sugar. DEKALB TO DISCUSS VAST ROAD PLAN

$1,000,000 Bond Issue for Rural Paving Urged.
A $1,000,000 road-building bond issue for DeKalb county will be discussed at a mass meeting to be held at the DeKalb county courthouse at 7:30 o'clock Thursday night, it was announced yesterday.

Charles D. McKinney, chairman of the citizens' committee on organization of the DeKalb County Chamber of Agriculture and Commerce, proposed the bond issue and suggested that the election be held September 14, coincident with the Democratic primary. Bond funds, if voted, would be used to match federal funds that might be secured for an extensive road-building program throughout the county. McKinney stressed the need of paved roads from rural communities to trading centers.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS AERONAUTICS BILL, WORKS ON 'CHAT'

Late Clark Howell Helped Prepare Report Forming Basis of Act.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., June 23. (AP)—President Roosevelt gave his approval today to a bill setting up a civil aeronautics authority to regulate this country's nonmilitary aviation.

The measure was one of 55 on which the President took action before he started work on his "fireside chat" to be delivered to the nation at 9:30 p. m. (Atlanta time) Friday from Washington. (The bill grew out of a report made to congress by the Federal Aviation Commission, of which the late Clark Howell, editor and president of The Atlanta Constitution, was chairman. Other members of the commission were Edward P. Warner, vice chairman and former assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aviation; Albert J. Berres, labor's representative; Jerome C. Hunsaker, a well-known authority on aeronautics; and Franklin K. Lane Jr., son of a former secretary of the interior.)

Of the 55, Mr. Roosevelt signed 48 and vetoed 7, bringing the total of measures approved to 126 and those disapproved to 18, between his arrival at home here Monday morning and his departure for the capital tonight.

To Have Five Members.
The aeronautics authority, to have five $12,000 members and a $12,000-a-year administrator, takes some of its regulatory functions from the Bureau of Air Commerce in the Commerce Department and others from the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Among other things, the authority will have power to issue and revoke licenses for air lines carrying passengers and property, pass upon such lines' rates and permit or refuse authority for airline mergers or interlocking relationships.

In addition, it is directed to encourage the establishment of civil airways and to make a survey, on which it must report by February 1, 1939, on whether the federal government shall participate in a program to build and maintain a nation-wide system of airports.

The President said before he left Washington that he expected to get the authority going immediately and intended to appoint the authority members and the administrator before leaving Washington July 7 on a trip to the Pacific.

Naval Officers Increased.
Among other bills signed was one authorizing the Maritime Commission to purchase vessels for operation "on essential routes" and fixing ship building subsidies which are to represent the differences in cost of building ships in this country and abroad. They are granted to persons and concerns desiring to build vessels for what the commission considers worth-while purposes.

A third bill would increase the number of naval officers to 6,531 over a period of five years. It will give the navy 1,031 new officers. The authorized number of marine officers was increased 211, to a total of 1,503. The increased cost was estimated by the Navy Department at $300,000 the first year and $2,500,000 after the fifth year.

Another measure approved would permit the Interior Department to lease state, county and private lands within grazing districts in the interest of the orderly use, improvement and development of the districts.

One bill signed fixed the hours of work for officers and seamen on Great Lakes tugs at eight per day, except in emergencies.

All the bills vetoed were of minor nature concerning individuals.

The President still has about 175 bills on which he must act by the early part of next week.

WORLD WHEAT CROP ESTIMATE MADE

Russia, China Excluded.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP) The Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today that a world wheat production of about 4,025,000,000 bushels is indicated for this year. This compares with last year's harvest of 3,827,000,000 bushels. The estimate did not include Russia and China.

Such a crop, the bureau said, would provide a world supply of about 320,000,000 bushels more this last season.

On the basis of normal consumption needs, it also would provide a surplus in July, 1939, of about 925,000,000 bushels, compared with a normal carry-over of 675,000,000.

The bureau said early indications point to an American wheat crop of about 1,000,000,000 bushels.

spot. The public will draw him right through the fine comb, may be ruin his career. There are at least ten actors in Hollywood who could give a better impersonation of Rhett Butler than I."

Script Follows Novel. Gable said from his observation of the script, it follows the novel with great exactness. "Nothing has been left out. It is a swell, compact job of film writing, and I believe it is the longest movie script ever written. There are 21,000 pages to the screen story, which is twice average length. That means about 20 reels of picture."

Gable's description lends credence to rumors the picture may be released in two parts, for two separate showings, a releasing novelty often discussed but never before undertaken in the film industry.

Miss Mitchell said last night she expected Miss Shearer and Gable to be "grand" in their portrayals of Scarlett O'Hara and Rhett Butler.

Did Miss Shearer and Gable conform with the personalities of the characters she created? The author would not comment on this. "To me, Scarlett and Rhett are real persons," Miss Mitchell replied. "They are just themselves and like no one else."

Asking if there had been any announcement about whom would play the parts of "Melanie" and "Ashley Wilkes," two other principal characters in the book, Miss Mitchell said she was "more interested" now as to who would get those parts.

"You know, Ashley and Melanie were very important, too," she said.

The author said she was pleased that Walter Connolly would play the part of Gerald O'Hara, Scarlett's father, as was announced more than a year ago.

While dozens of actresses and would-be actresses have been "chosen" for the part of "Scarlett," few pickers have made other nominations besides that of Clark Gable for the part of dark-haired, dashing Rhett Butler. It has been accepted almost universally since the book was published that he was the man for the part.

During the time "Gone With the Wind" has been before the public, Paulette Goddard, Bette Davis, Claudette Colbert, Myrna Loy and a host of debutantes from Atlanta to Czechoslovakia have been "sure things" for the part of Scarlett.

FLARES INVESTIGATED.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 23. (AP)—The coast guard said the patrol boat CG-837 was en route from Fort Lauderdale to investigate flares reported seen in the Atlantic ocean 10 miles east of Delray beach.

cluded in the sweeping measure was indicated in use of the word "staatsangehoerige"—dependants of the state," which would include Jews—instead of "staatsbuerger," meaning first-class citizens, a classification in which the Jews are not listed.

The average German and his wife are guessing what sort of services will be required, although the communique hinted that the selective system would be put into operation and that the selected workers would suffer no reduction in income while in the service of the country.

It was said that unemployment had been reduced in May to about 330,000 persons, some of whom could not work because of infirmities, and that the number of employed persons had jumped to about 20,500,000—leaving no reserves for state services.

Jews, Communists LINKED BY U. S. NAZI

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Jews were coupled with Communists today by Fritz Kuhn, fuhrer of the German-American Bund, who asserted the two groups sought to destroy the constitution and that "all Jews," without exception, were enemies of the United States.

Kuhn made his blunt denunciation before the joint legislative committee on law enforcement which is investigating alleged Nazi activities. The Bund is an organization of German-Americans.

"When a mosquito lights on your arm, you don't ask whether he is good or bad, you brush him away," Kuhn said when he was reminded by Senator John J. McNaboe, committee chairman, that many of the "upstanding citizens" of America are Jewish.

Kuhn said "All Jews are Jews first, before they are Americans," and added his associates wanted the same rights in America as the Jews. He said he hoped to see the day when everyone in this country would give the "open-hand" salute, his description of the Nazi salute which Kuhn said originated at the Olympic games.

The Bund leader asserted that both major political parties in the United States are controlled by Jews. He told the committee the Republican party is controlled by the house of Wall Street, the Democratic party by Kuhn, Loeb and Company and that both banking houses were under the domination of the house of Rothschild.

ATLANTA-MARIETTA ROAD WORK RUSHED

MARIETTA, Ga., June 23.—Completion of paving on Atlanta-Marietta highway by early fall was predicted today by Commissioner Charles M. Head, who said he had definite assurance that a stretch of at least three miles from the end of the present paving to Marietta—will be paved by that time.

Meanwhile, work is progressing on the huge double underpass at the northern terminus of the super-road. The underpass will be completed in about ten months, engineers said. It will be of the modified cloverleaf type.

RIISING TEMPERATURE, CLOUDY IS PREDICTED

Rising temperature and partly cloudy skies were predicted for Atlanta today by the United States Weather Bureau, with little likelihood of rain.

The mercury is expected to hit a new high of 92 degrees today, ranging upward from 70 degrees. Yesterday's average temperatures ranged from a low of 67 to a high of 85 degrees.

Kidnap Slayer Has Found Peace, He Tells Atlantan

Evangelist, Once Friend of McCall's Father, Reveals Letter From Youth.

Franklin Pierce McCall, convicted kidnaper of 5-year-old James Bailey Cash, of Princeton, Fla., has found peace in his heart and is not afraid to die.

Those are the words he wrote the Rev. Charlie D. Tillman, Atlanta evangelist, who was once a close friend of the youth's father, it was disclosed yesterday. The minister, who lives at 1870 Murphy avenue, S. W., had previously written him a letter assuring him that "God is not mad at you" and calling on him to repent.

The 21-year-old fair-haired youth snatched the Cash child from his bedroom on the night of May 28, then accidentally strangled it and demanded $10,000 in ransom money because he "wanted the things of life," he can see nothing but death before him.

Sentenced to Die. The law has already dealt its blow. The youth has been sentenced to die in the electric chair. He has little hope that the courts will save him from the same fate he handed five-year-old Jimmy Cash, and in his hour of distress he has recognized the existence of an all-powerful Being in whom he may find comfort, Tillman said.

"I appreciate the feeling that you had for my dad and thank you for it," the youth writes. "If the court so orders, and I have no doubt that it will, that I must die, I'll go from this earth to meet him."

The letter is neat and well written. It reveals a background of education. Aside from the subject matter, there is no indication that it came from the mind of a criminal. Although brief, it gives a picture of the innermost thoughts of the youth as he sits in his death cell faced with the inevitability of death.

Not Afraid to Die.

"I want to tell you that I have prayed for forgiveness for sin and now have peace in my heart and am not afraid to die," he says.

The letter closes with an appeal for the continued prayers of the Atlanta minister.

In sending words of comfort to the doomed boy, Mr. Tillman directed him to read "St. John, third chapter and 16th verse, where it says: 'For God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on Him shall not perish but have everlasting life.'"

"Open your Bible to that verse," the minister told him, "get down on your knees with it before you and read and put your name in like this: 'For God so loved Frank Pierce McCall that He gave His only Son that if Frank McCall believes on Him, Frank McCall shall have everlasting life.'"

Tillman's letter opened with this paragraph: "If you recall who I am, of course you will not wonder at me writing you, for you remember how closely associated your father and I were. I looked upon him as one of my very best friends and I know full well that if he were living and my boy was in trouble, that he would do what he could to help him."

The minister promises the boy that if he will repent and trust in God he will be saved. The boy's letter indicates that he repented immediately to the Atlanta friend of his father, for he opens with:

"Let me thank you for your very kind letter which I received today."

Mr. Tillman sent a copy of his letter to the boy's grief-stricken mother in Jasper, Fla. He thinks he was only doing his duty in trying to encourage and comfort the youth.

"Some may criticize me for even taking enough interest in the boy to write him, but he is soon to meet his Maker and I would not feel right to sit idly by and let his soul be lost," he said.

Dear Mr. Tillman,
June 15, 1938

Let me thank you for your very kind letter which I received today. I want to tell you that I have prayed for forgiveness for sin and now have peace in my heart and am not afraid to die.

I appreciate the feeling that you had for my Dad and thank you for it. If the court so orders, and I have no doubt that it will, that I must die, I'll go from this earth to meet him. Your continued prayers will be appreciated. Sincerely yours, Franklin Pierce McCall was announced, said he felt that the fourth corps area is "extremely lucky" to obtain a commander of General Embick's caliber. Both General Embick and General Stoddard are coast artillery officers. The Georgian served for a period under General Embick at the coast artillery school at Fort Monroe, Va., several years ago.

EMBICK IS NAMED TO 4TH CORPS AREA

Secretary Woodring said General Embick will remain in Atlanta until his retirement which is scheduled for June, 1941.

General Embick wears the Distinguished Service medal awarded him for service on the supreme war council during the World War. He also is an officer of the French Legion of Honor and also wears the medal of a companion of the British order of St. Michael and St. George.

The new corps commander recently visited General Moseley in Atlanta. "On that visit I met numerous old friends from the days when I served there as a lieutenant," the general said today. "I am looking forward to renewing those friendships upon my permanent return to the south."

Atlanta's new corps area commander is a native of Greencastle, Pa. He graduated from the United States Military Academy in 1918 and was immediately assigned to duty in Cuba. During the World War he was transferred temporarily to the signal corps, returning to the coast artillery after the armistice.

General Embick has been deputy chief of staff since 1936, previously having served as assistant chief. His appointment to Atlanta is his first as corps area commander.

SLAYING OF DEPUTY TOLD AT COAL TRIAL

Operator Also Testifies to 'Belling' of Doctor.

LONDON, Ky., June 23.—(AP)—The slaying of a company-paid deputy sheriff and the "belling" of a mine camp doctor were touched upon—but only sketchily—today by a Harlan county coal operator testifying as a defense witness in the Harlan anti-union conspiracy case.

Federal District Judge Ford sustained government objection to details of the incidents on the ground the witness, William H. Seinknecht, could offer only hearsay testimony.

Forney Johnston, of defense counsel, said eye witnesses would be produced to continue the story of how a cowbell was tied around the neck of Dr. N. B. Payne and he was driven from the county, and how Owen Sizemore, the deputy, was killed in 1931 as he stood in the Blue Diamond camp reading literature being distributed by United Mine Workers of America organizers.

start the series today, advertised it was the "authentic inside story behind the United States grand jury indictments of 14 German officials."

Turrou, who helped solve the Lindbergh kidnap-murder, was the agent chiefly responsible for the recent indictment of 18 persons, including 14 now in Germany, on espionage charges.

Judge Hulbert agreed with counsel that the case was without precedent.

"It is not so much a question of freedom of the press," said the court, "but whether persons engaged by the government to perform an act can publish information by that act."

Assistant United States Attorney John W. Burke said "he (Turrou) obtained this information while in the employ of the United States. He doesn't own it. He has it in his care, but he hasn't the right to sell it, to reveal it."

Simon H. Rifkind, counsel for Turrou, replied: "Talk about trying the case in newspapers and giving away clues and leads and information—I have here a book of clippings from every newspaper in this city, and I would like to make it an exhibit in this case. One of the most prolific sources of the news contained in these clippings is J. Edgar Hoover, who was Mr. Turrou's chief."

"If it was all right for Mr. Hoover to get his name in the newspapers I believe it is all right for humble Mr. Turrou to get his name and picture in."

On the free press issue, Rifkind said:

"An injunction in this case would prevent the revelation of anything about any case in the future. That is not the law, and it ought not to be the law, and when it is the law—then we shall have lost the freedom of the press."

Burke said "the press should be free—but not licensed to destroy those things which are the pillars of the government."

"A grand jury investigation is in progress," he said. "Mr. Turrou is in possession of vital information which he proposes to sell to newspapers in all parts of the United States."

"If this information is published it will result in untold damage."

Peek Murder Probe Centers About Search for Youth

Search for a mysterious young couple went on yesterday afternoon as funeral rites were held for Mr. and Mrs. J. Ed Peek. On the steps of Fortified Hills Baptist church stood (left to right) Mrs. Marie Bond; her daughter, Allie, and Nellie Cain, a waitress, scanning faces of persons who entered and left, in efforts to recognize a man and a woman who left the Bond establishment at Bolton with the Peeks at about 9 o'clock Monday night.

Most of the appropriation bills had riders, sponsored chiefly by Representative Starnes, Democrat, Alabama, providing that no alien who has not taken out first citizenship papers shall draw pay from the appropriated funds.

In addition, a senate resolution, introduced by Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee instructed all departments and agencies to furnish congress at the opening of the next session with lists of the aliens they employ and the reasons for employing them.

Mystery Death Wounds Deepest, Bereaved Atlanta Mother Finds

Family of Mrs. Peek Tries To Keep Mrs. J. W. Coursey's Mind Off Most Recent and Most Poignant Of Her Sorrows.

By YOLANDE GWIN.

Death springing from an uncertain source and wearing a cloak of mystery is the greatest sorrow to accept, according to a woman who has met and braved death four times within four months.

She is Mrs. J. W. Coursey, whose daughter, Mrs. J. Ed Peek, with her husband, lay in her grave last night after kerosene-soaked bodies of the two were found at dawn Tuesday near Austell.

Mrs. Coursey bore her sorrow with a brave front yesterday when she returned from attending the graveside services of her daughter and son-in-law.

The family, with the exception of two daughters, Edna and Argie Coursey, sat on the porch as the afternoon sun was setting.

"Uncertainty So Hard."

"Mother has had to bear up under other deaths in the family," said Argie. "When grandma and my uncle and aunt died, but this time not knowing how or why Lou was killed seems to be more than she can stand. We have tried not to talk to her about it."

"She has hoped and prayed since Tuesday that the Lord would show her some way to solve the problem. The uncertainty feature of the death is what makes it so hard for her to bear. If Lou had died a natural death, but this—it's too hard to try to accept."

Miss Edna Coursey, another daughter, said:

"Mother can think no farther than the fact that Lou has gone. We all have one satisfaction in the death and that is, that there could have been no cause for any jealousy between sister and anyone. We don't know of anyone who could have wished her harm."

"She and her husband were so happy together and had so many good times together and with the children, too. His children, you know, sister did not have any. Just a few weeks ago they were here and we were all taking pictures. 'We are not going to let mother

Undercover Probe.

Deputy Sheriff George McMillan, of Cobb county, who has been conducting an undercover investigation since the bodies of the Peeks were found early Tuesday morning at the bottom of a railroad cut on the Austell-Marietta road, was not at the funeral, either at the church or at the Greenwood cemetery graveside.

After the funeral, Mrs. Bond went to the Peek home at 1880 South Gordon street, S. W., to describe the mysterious couple to Miss Helen Peek, 18, daughter of the slain man, in an attempt to learn if the daughter knew their identity.

Another development yesterday was the finding of another person who had seen two automobiles on the murder road early Monday morning.

He was Gordon Reeves, 21, a farmer living about a half mile from the farm home of his employer, I. F. Wallace. The Wallace house is on the Austell-Marietta road just a few hundred feet from the Orange Hill church, where a trail of blood which led to the railroad bridge began.

Windlass Iron Found.

A piece of iron several inches long and with a sharp point, apparently a handle of a well windlass, was found near the well on the church grounds.

It was also learned that the well rope was of the three-strand type, the same as the type of rope found tightly wound around Mrs. Peek's neck. It could not be determined whether a section had been removed. A spiderweb covered the well.

Near the Wallace home are two fields of oats, an important point, since Mrs. Peek's hair was matted with oats and a few grains were found in her right slipper. Her left slipper is still missing, however.

Police of Cobb county, Fulton county and officials of the State Highway Patrol worked together yesterday on the investigation. Their only answer to queries, however, was an enigmatic "no new developments."

Murders Without Motive.

As the crime entered its fourth day, it remained murders without motive, so far as official sources were concerned.

According to those at the River-view inn, Mr. and Mrs. Peek drove to the establishment at about 7:30 o'clock Monday night. Peek was at the wheel of the car, which was headed toward Atlanta, coming from the direction toward Marietta.

They halted at the front door of the place, according to Miss Gladys Parker, a waitress.

"Mrs. Peek asked if we had any good fish, and I told her, 'yes, we have a fine fish dinner.' She sort of laughed, and said, 'All right, we'll be in.'"

The car was then driven to the parking space in the rear, and Mr. and Mrs. Peek entered the establishment, taking seats in a booth on the river side, she continued. They sat opposite each other.

Knew Inn Operator.

Mrs. Bond came over to them a short time later. She said she knew Mrs. Peek, and asked her, "How is it I haven't seen you for such a long time?"

She said Mrs. Peek replied, "Oh, I've been down in Florida about a year."

Mrs. Bond then talked to the couple about the recent improvements to the restaurant, as the waitresses went about filling the orders. Allie Bond, Mrs. Bond's daughter, was also in the place at the time.

The girls said Mrs. Peek ordered a fish dinner, and a bottle of ale. They said Peek appeared tired, and said he had already eaten and was not hungry.

Shared Ale.

When the ale was brought, Mrs. Peek insisted that he drink some, and he shared the bottle with her. He also shared a second bottle of ale, and then ordered half a cantaloupe, telling one of the waitresses, "Put the other half on ice; she may want it later."

Mrs. Bond said neither appeared intoxicated.

"They were as sober as anybody. They have always behaved well, as a matter of fact, the times they were in my place."

About a half hour later, the mysterious young couple came in and joined the Peeks, the man sitting next to Peek and the young woman sitting next to Mrs. Peek.

At about 9 o'clock, or shortly thereafter, the party left. Peek presented a $5 bill in payment for a $1.15 check, but Mrs. Bond said "that will rob me of all my silver."

Peek Seemed Nervous.

So Mrs. Peek paid the check, leaving a 10-cent tip for the waitresses. The girls said they were impressed with the hat Mrs. Peek was wearing. They described it as a white crepe turban, plaited, and with a small white visor. Peek was not wearing glasses, they said. He seemed nervous and had to be persuaded to drink or eat.

Mrs. Bond and the waitresses identified the bodies at the Mayes Ward funeral home, Marietta. Mrs. Bond also said she knew Peek, and that he had been at her establishment with eight other men about three weeks ago.

Bodies of the couple, encased in wooden coffins of gray, lay in state at the church from 1:30 o'clock until 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The caskets were decked with flowers, and Mrs. Ethel Cooper played hymns on a piano until the hour when services were due to begin.

Seats were reserved for the family in the front of the wooden interior of the church, which was erected in 1913. The outside is of brick. The lower floor and balcony were filled, and the crowd overflowed into the front doorway.

The church seats 300 persons. More than 150 extra funeral chairs had been provided.

Members of the immediate families arrived a few minutes before services were to begin. Helen, wearing a black straw hat and a white and black outfit, entered with her sister, Katherine, 14. They sat with the brother, John Peek, on the second row.

All windows of the church were open, and fans were much in evidence. Mrs. A. Mitchell sang a hymn and the Rev. J. C. Daniel, pastor of the church, began the services.

He spoke briefly, saying that Mrs. Peek had once been a member of that congregation, and the Capitol View Baptist, of which they were present members, was now being remodeled.

Speaks 40 Minutes.

He was followed by the Rev. W. Lee Cuts, pastor of Capitol View. The Rev. Mr. Cuts spoke for 40 minutes, his voice rising and falling in fervor and sincerity.

His theme was principally the "Lord is our refuge and our strength," as he spoke of the "presence and power of God enabling stricken ones to meet the exigencies of life."

"God is going to see that the right thing is done," he said. "Ultimately, right will prevail. Let us not judge too hastily. Let us look to Him and let Him direct our lives. Without God we are powerless."

Single Graves.

After the services, the body of Peek was taken from the church first. The body of Mrs. Peek followed. A procession of at least 100 automobiles moved slowly to the cemetery. There, the Rev. Mr. Cuts spoke a brief service, and the bodies were lowered into single graves.

The story told by Reeves, the second farmer to note two cars on the road the night of the murders, injected additional mystery into the slayings, and further strengthened a murder theory.

He said that he was trudging along the road to the Wallace house at about 12:30 o'clock Monday morning, since he and Wallace were going to take a load of produce into Atlanta.

"I noticed two cars that seemed to be right in front of the Wallace driveway. One car was stopped, and the other one pulled up right in front of it. Two men got out of the front car, and came around to the other vehicle."

Scared—Kept Walking.

"I kept walking forward, and as I passed the cars, I heard a man's voice say, 'When you stop, cut your lights.' I was kind of scared, and kept right on walking. I looked back though, and both cars turned off their lights."

"Then I passed, I got a quick look at the cars. Both were Chevrolet sedans. There seemed to be two men in the rear car, and another man in the front car. That is, three men altogether in the front car.

"The first car speeded up and moved up the road, toward the railroad. The other car followed, kind of slow moving."

Reeves told Wallace what he had seen and heard, but they continued into Atlanta without investigating further.

'Fireside Chat' To Open Series of Talks Seen as Having Dual Purpose.

Indications point toward the redefinition of Roosevelt policies, foreign and domestic, during this off-year political tour.

The attitude Mr. Roosevelt will take toward present business conditions was indicated at one of his recent press conferences. He pictured the situation as less serious in fact than his critics have described it.

Party Trouble Spots. Discussion of the President's western itinerary has turned mostly on the direct political aid he may give to New Deal senators engaged in renomination fights in

Thumbs at Judge, Faints at Sentence

CAMDEN, N. J., June 23.—(P)—The courtroom crowd roared today when a young woman defendant thumbed her nose and stuck out her tongue at the judge.

The young woman fainted when the jurist sent her to jail for six months for contempt of court.

Kentucky, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, California or elsewhere along the way. The map of his journey conforms too closely to party trouble spots to avoid the conclusion that it was shaped with that in mind.

At the same time, however, announcement of what may amount to a 1938 New Deal campaign platform, containing foreign as well as domestic planks, is likely to be the outstanding effect of Roosevelt speeches, if observers interpret the situation correctly.

Boeing Designs Clipper Capable Of Carrying 100

SEATTLE, June 23.—(P)—The Boeing Aircraft Company disclosed plans today for a plane twice as big as the newly-built 42-ton clipper which some engineers called the "last of the little airplanes."

The plans have been submitted to Pan-American Airways in response to an invitation to design a ship capable of "carrying 100 passengers 5,000 miles non-stop, at speeds up to 300 miles an hour."

Officials said the ship would weigh more than 100 tons and have a wingspread of approximately 300 feet, twice the span of the present Boeing clipper. Six propellers would operate from the leading edge of the wing, with motors mounted within the wings.

PWA TO AID STATE IN SCHOOL BUILDING

Rivers Heads Georgia Delegation to Washington, Seeking Funds.

Assistant to Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes, informed the Georgians that Ickes will formally announce release of the University building program funds at his press conference tomorrow.

Meanwhile the Governor and other state officials laid before the PWA the most widespread program ever undertaken by Georgia, including requests for funds for new farmers' markets in Atlanta and Macon, funds for the development of the state park system, more funds for national guard armories, a program calling for new arenas to be owned and rented by the State Athletic Commission as well as other parts of the Rivers' development program.

Assistant Administrator Burlew assured the Governor that all of the projects laid before him by the state of Georgia would be given full consideration with particular care being given the projects considered self-liquidating.

Dr. M. D. Collins, state superintendent of schools, who is in the Georgia party, said that the building program under the department of education involved every school district in the state.

Application for Funds. Many of these districts have had their applications for funds in Ickes' office for a long time and that money is now available to them, the state superintendent said. "The PWA will put up 45 per cent of the total as a grant while the local district will provide the remaining 55 per cent."

Dr. Collins said that some of the districts already have been put up as their share on the new buildings while others will have to make a loan from the PWA.

"We do not mean to say that there will be a $16,000,000 school building program gotten under way at once," Dr. Collins said. "The actual situation is this. There is about $7,000,000 in PWA money available for Georgia school buildings and we expect the local district to take up most of this."

Dr. Collins said the applications which are not now on file will have to come to Washington through the offices of J. Houston Johnston, state PWA engineer, in Atlanta.

To Finish Program. Dr. S. V. Sanford, chancellor of the University System, said that when the buildings to be authorized by Secretary of the Interior Ickes tomorrow are completed the University System will be well on its way toward finishing the great building program it launched several years ago. There still is approximately $1,000,000 in state

Sees Ex-Wife, Son, Then Wanders On

LOGANSPOUT, Ind., June 23.—(P)—It was back to the open road today for Harry Bowles, 54, after an accidental visit with his former wife and a 23-year-old son he hadn't seen until now.

"You can't pick up where you left off, not 24 years after," Bowles observed as he packed his few belongings and left a hospital where he was treated for wounds received in a hobo "jungle" scrape.

"Nellie and Harry," tattooed on Bowles' left arm, brought Mrs. Nellie Mahalia and their son to the hospital to see him. She said he deserted her soon after their marriage in 1914. She divorced him soon after the baby's birth and remarried.

funds on hand to pay the board of regents' share of this program.

Chancellor Sanford said the regents' applications for the 16 new projects have been already approved by the PWA examining board and are ready for the President's pen.

Under the proposal, the regents would advance 55 per cent and the PWA 45 per cent of the funds.

The projects follow:

Athens—Dormitory, $17,000; girls' dormitory, $14,000; agriculture class room, $14,750; library, $14,227.

Dahlonega—Auditorium-dining hall, $66,500; library, $27,000.

Americus—Auditorium-gymnasium, $52,500; dormitory, $61,548.

Cochran—Library, $28,000.

Tifton—Auditorium-gymnasium, $71,000; library, $30,000.

Augusta—Auditorium, $27,500; dining hall, $22,500.

Augusta—Library, $62,500.

Douglas—Library, $30,000.

Valdosta—Library, $72,000.

Expansion of the University System's facilities has been made absolutely necessary because of an increase of 3,500 students in the last five years, Sanford asserted.

Commissioner of Agriculture Columbus Roberts and Hamilton Ralls, state director of markets, laid before Burlew their request for funds to finance the projected new farmers' markets.

Both Commissioner Roberts and Ralls assured the PWA official that these projects are self-liquidating and their costs are to be repaid from the fees paid by farmers and truckers using the markets. The federal officials promised early action on this request.

Upon his arrival here from Minneapolis, Governor Rivers received a telegram from residents of the Murphy avenue area protesting against the establishment of the market at Murphy avenue and Sylvan road. He made no comment on the telegram, which was signed by Ernest Brewer, fourth ward civic leader.

Another Project. Another project which Administrator Burlew promised to give early attention was the one presented by Director R. F. Burch of the Bureau of Natural Resources, and Charles Elliott, head of the state parks division. Elliott is asking for about $5,000,000 to build up a park system. He plans to erect a number of vacation cabins in the parks and repay the cost of development from the cabin rentals.

Adjutant General John E. Stoddard informed Ickes' aide that the request for $1,000,000 to build new national guard armories would be on his desk in a few days.

Stoddard said he hoped to make the armories self-liquidating by paying for them out of the guards' state appropriation as well as through rentals.

Senator Paul Lindsay, of Atlanta, and Representative Henderson Lanham, of Rome, two leaders of the general assembly in Georgia, accompanied the Governor and his delegation on their rounds to assure federal officials that any state legislation required to put over the projects would be forthcoming.

Representative Lanham also is working on a flood control project for the Etowah and Coosa rivers near Cartersville. This will be laid before the chief of army engineers tomorrow.

Governor Rivers lunched with Administrator Hopkins and L. W. Robert, of Atlanta.

Sees RFC Official.

With Assistant Attorney Ellis G. Arnall, the chief executive spent more than an hour with Claude Hamilton, an attorney for the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, this afternoon working out the final details of the RFC plan to take over the discounted W. & A. rentals. The rentals are to be issued by the Governor on his return to Atlanta and forwarded to the RFC.

Under the special act of the general assembly discounting the railroad warrants for the years 1944 to 1949, inclusive, half of the proceeds is to go to the Welfare Department for its building program and the other half to the counties. The state will realize a total of $3,200,000 from this source and its half or $1,600,000 will be used to obtain materials for which Hopkins promised today to furnish the labor to start on the welfare building program.

The Governor also called on the Department of Internal Revenue during the day to aid naval stores operators in their effort to eliminate themselves from provisions of the Social Security Act. Farmers are exempt from provisions of this act, but naval stores operators are not given a classification. However, they are asking for the exemption on the ground that the wage and hour law, a subsequent act, classifies them as agriculturists. The revenue department took the Governor's plea under advisement.

With Director Burch, the Governor also visited Robert F. Burch, CCC chief, during the day to ask additional CCC camps for Georgia. This also was taken under advisement.

School Projects. The six school projects already released under the new "spend-ent" bill include:

PWA SCHOOL PROJECTS.

JONES COUNTY—

One-story brick veneer new school building and additions and alterations to existing buildings $13,850 $30,790

ROME (Floyd)—

Two-story brick high school building and equipment 101,250 225,000

PELHAM (Mitchell)—

Construction and equipment of school building 22,220 51,800

Total $256,040 $568,979

Six additional projects, to be consummated at an estimated cost of $508,865, were announced yesterday by H. T. Cole, in Atlanta, regional PWA administrator, the government advancing $211,540 against the total cost.

Construction of courthouses and jails, waterworks systems and a swimming pool and a bathhouse were included among the projects, the proposed erection of a courthouse and jail at LaGrange at an estimated cost of $234,521, the federal grant being placed at $105,535.

Allocations to the state, as announced by Administrator Cole, follow:

Macon, construction of swimming pool and bath house, including installation of filtering plant and acquisition of land, $29,200.

LaGrange, construction and equipping of courthouse and jail, and acquisition of land, $106,520.

Brunswick, construction of city park with acquisition of necessary land, $15,165.

Barnesville, construction and equipping of fireproof jail, $11,647.

Logansville, installation of waterworks system, with acquisition of necessary lands, $12,043.

Adel, construction and equipping of two-story semi-fireproof courthouse and jail wing, $54,900.

FUNDS ARE SOUGHT FOR CLARK'S HILL DAM

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(P)—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, said he would attempt to learn tomorrow whether the comptroller general's office would approve use of flood control funds to purchase land for the Clark's Hill dam in South Carolina.

This was decided, he said, after a Georgia group urged Secretary Woodring today to make $1,700,000 available immediately to acquire sites.

The 1938 flood control act contained an authorization for the project, but no appropriation was made.

George said Woodring did not express his attitude on the project and the group primarily was seeking to learn how to proceed to obtain the funds.

In addition to George, those conferring at the War Department included Representative Brown, Democrat, Georgia; L. S. Moody and B. E. Pierce, of Augusta, Ga.

The Yangtze river in China rises, during the high water season, to almost unbelievable heights. Between Shanghai and Chungking there is an annual difference of from 90 to 100 feet between average minimum level and average maximum flood level.

In Atlanta Hospitals

Jerre Watson, of Anniston, Ala., who was admitted to Emory University hospital Wednesday afternoon, underwent a major operation yesterday. He was in "good" condition last night.

Miss Althea Darley, of Adrian, Ga., was "doing very nicely" at St. Joseph's infirmary last night, after undergoing a skin-graft operation on her hands. Miss Darley was burned months ago at her home and the operation was to aid her in use of her fingers, physicians said.

Condition of A. A. Braswell, of 933 Juniper street, N. E., was "fairly good" last night at Emory University hospital, where he was admitted Sunday. Mr. Braswell, a traveling salesman for more than 30 years, retired recently on account of failing health.

Howell B. Cox, of Route 2, College Park, underwent an appendectomy yesterday in Piedmont hospital. His condition was said to be "good" by attaches last night.

James H. Burge, of 1042 Center street, N. W., was in serious condition yesterday at Crawford W. Long hospital, where he was admitted on June 19, according to attaches.

Admitted to Georgia Baptist hospital late yesterday afternoon, J. W. Tatum, assistant manager of People's Furniture Company, was said by attaches to be in "fairly good" condition. He resided at 227 Elizabeth avenue, N. E.

W. K. Stringer, cotton mill executive of Anniston, S. C., was admitted to the Ponce de Leon Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat infirmary yesterday, suffering with a sinus infection. His condition was "satisfactory" last night.

General James L. Driver, 90, United States army, retired, was admitted to Crawford W. Long hospital last night for medical treatment. General Driver, who lives at 764 Virginia avenue, Hapeville, was said to be in "satisfactory" condition.

Miss Bessie Minter, of 255 Moreland avenue, N. E., teacher in the Mary Lynn school, is convalescing in Emory University hospital from a recent operation. Attaches said last night her condition was "good and comfortable."

OIL CAR EXPLODES

Two Boys Killed; One Is Blown 600 Feet.

GREENEVILLE, Tenn., June 23.—(P)—Two boys were killed tonight by an oil tank car explosion that rocked several blocks of Greenville.

Police Chief Laughters said they were identified as Frank Branch, 10, and a 12-year-old negro, Fletcher Crum. Laughters said the Branch boy's body was found atop a building about 200 feet from the scene of the explosion. The body of the negro boy, he said, was found more than 600 feet in the opposite direction.

Laughters said it was believed the boys dropped a lighted match into the empty tank car, causing the gas fumes to explode.

GUYOL DEATH CASE AFFIDAVITS HINT STARTLING EVIDENCE

Fluker's Attorney Asks
Grand Jury Investigation of Murder Case.

Indications that Mrs. Eddie Guyol, widow of the alleged lottery chieftain slain two years ago, murdered her husband are contained in affidavits in possession of the attorney for Odie V. Fluker, convicted for the slaying, it was charged in Fulton superior court yesterday as Fluker heard the death penalty pronounced upon him for the third time.

"All indications say that Myrtle Guyol killed her husband and that Walter Cutcliffe was mixed up in a conspiracy with her," Russell G. Turner, attorney for Fluker, said.

At the same time, he made an impassioned plea for a grand jury investigation of a "conspiracy" involving Cutcliffe, ex-lottery operator, and a police official in connection with the shooting of Guyol in the driveway alongside his house on Pelham road in 1935.

Asks Investigation.
"I humbly beg that the relationship of Walter Cutcliffe and Police Lieutenant C. E. McCrary be thoroughly sifted and investigated by the grand jury," Turner said.

Fluker was sentenced by Judge James C. Davis to die in the electric chair July 8. Fluker's second 30-day respite from death expired several days ago.

Turner, charging he "can no longer fight the case alone," said he would file an affidavit today to arrest the judgment of the court.

If this motion is denied, the denial can be appealed to the supreme court, he said.

He said he also would file an extraordinary motion for a new trial.

Startling Evidence.
Addressing the court, Turner announced he had obtained affidavits revealing "startling evidence of efforts to place this innocent man in the electric chair for a crime he did not commit."

The affidavits, he said, that Mrs. Guyol killed her husband in a conspiracy with Cutcliffe. A conspiracy with Lieutenant McCrary and Cutcliffe in obtaining evidence which convicted Fluker is also indicated, he charged.

Turner asked that a letter he claimed was written by Lieutenant McCrary to a convict in a chain gang camp be investigated. He charged the letter referred to what McCrary and Cutcliffe would do for the prisoner in return for testimony in the Fluker case.

Attorney "Blocked."
Turner said he had been "blocked on every move" in attempts to have an investigation into the case started by witnesses who threatened for an attorney for Cutcliffe, who told them they would be indicted for perjury if they swore on the affidavits, he added.

"I know of no way for the court to compel a grand jury investigation, but I humbly beg that the grand jury investigate the manner in which evidence was obtained and how much money was paid," Turner said. "The grand jury won't have to start from scratch—here are the affidavits. They speak for themselves."

"I do not blame the courts or the solicitor's office, which evidently accepted the evidence in good faith. Their hands are absolutely clean. But I appeal to an aroused public and judiciary," he said. "These certain local judges who cannot stomach this case."

While Turner spoke, Fluker stood quietly before the judge, his face pale. He was neatly dressed and had grown a slight mustache since his last appearance in court, more than a month ago.

He was convicted of Guyol's slaying after Mrs. Guyol identified him as the man who approached her and her husband as they sat in their car in the driveway.

R. A. BYNUM HELD IN MORPHINE CASE

Hearing Set Before Grand Jury Thursday.

Ralph A. Bynum, 146 Forrest avenue, is being held in jail in default of $2,000 bond following a preliminary hearing yesterday before Commissioner E. S. Griffith on a charge of having "sent himself, or caused to be sent" 19 1-2 grains of morphine. He will appear before the federal grand jury Thursday.

M. C. Green, a narcotic agent, testified that Bynum ordered the morphine by telegraph May 7 from Elizabeth City, N. C.

Charged with operating an illicit still, James Junior Favors, negro, was held for the grand jury in default of bond in the sum of $300. He was arrested in Henry county.

"FEATHERBEDDING"

In the first of a series of three articles appearing in The Wall Street Journal, Arundel Cotter discusses a feature of railroad rates of pay which is not generally understood by people outside of the rail transportation industry.

This is the custom known to railroad men as "featherbedding." It is more clearly described in official records as "time paid for but not worked." According to the Cotter article, this expense of operation amounted in 1937 to $104,582,000, more than 5 per cent of the total pay rolls. In addition to this, there was a sum of $13,864,000 paid, under union rules and agreements, in so-called "constructive allowances," which made the total of "time paid for but not worked" $118,446,000 for the year.

This practice is the result of expansion of union rules. It has been in force since the latter part of the last century and is by no means altogether bad. Cotter writes:

Strange as it may appear the practice is by no means indefensible. For one thing, it tends to iron out certain inequalities unavoidable in railroad employment. At any rate, it has worked with fairly satisfactory results to all parties concerned until recent years.

In the last few years, however, featherbedding practices have grown and expanded to a level where they materially affect the operations and profits of the railroads and work inequalities not only on the employer but on a majority of the rail employees themselves, benefiting only a comparatively few.

Railroad men, many of them, are dissatisfied with the practice, it is claimed, with quotations from workers, themselves given in support of this view. Senior railroad locomotive engineers take more than their share of work and pay, according to W. A. Murray, a locomotive engineer writing in The Railway Age. He says "the senior men have capitalized on the seniority rule until it has become a racket."

Another rail employee, now furloughed with thousands of others as rail employment has decreased, is C. A. Cunningham, a former fireman on the Chesapeake & Ohio. Cunningham wrote to President Roosevelt appealing for more equitable division of railroad work. He wrote, in part:

During the depression furloughed men all over the nation have tried in vain to get this rule changed, but the brotherhoods have stubbornly refused to do so. Furloughed engineers have seen their homes taken from them, their gas, electricity and water shut off, their families hungry, while some single fellow a few doors away was working 48 days a month.

The rule referred to by Cunningham is one adopted during the World War permitting men in freight service to work 38 days a month or the equivalent thereof in mileage and passenger men 48 days per month, or its equivalent in mileage.

The possibility of crowding 48 days' work into a single month arises from a union agreement with the roads which sets eight hours' work, or a run of 100 miles, as a day's work. Thus the engineer who takes his locomotive a distance of 200 miles, regardless of the time consumed on the run, may receive two days' pay for that particular job.

It is stated in the Cotter article, for instance, that the engineers on the runs between New York and Washington, a distance of 320 miles, receive three and one-fifth days' pay every time they make the run, although on some fast trains it only involves four hours' running time. Other cases are cited, including a round-trip run on the Rock Island Lines, which amounts to five hours and 20 minutes actual running time, a gross of less than seven hours on duty, yet the engineers get paid for more than three days every time they make the journey, which totals 322 miles.

It is these rules which account for the statement, recently made by a prominent railroad executive, that locomotive engineers who worked an average of 40 hours a week—the weekly maximum set up as proper in the wages and hours act—would be paid at the rate of $6,800 per annum. The same man stated there are only ten officers in his company who make as much per hour worked as many of the locomotive engineers on the road.

As Mr. Cotter points out, there are good arguments for such rules as these, but under the present situation of the roads, and with the steady shrinkage in the total of railroad workers employed, it would seem reasonable that the brotherhoods might relax their insistence on the letter of such regulations. For the sake of their fellow workers, if not for the sake of their hard-pressed employers.

That the Railroad Labor Adjustment Board has contributed to the heavy burden of "time paid for but not worked," is indicated in the closing paragraph of the Cotter article, which reads:

These seemingly high rates of pay for skilled employees pale into insignificance when compared with payments made under a decision by the Railroad Labor Adjustment Board for services demanding none of these attributes, awards which it is estimated have worked out as high as $40 for an hour of actual work.

If the statements made in the Cotter article are correct, one of the causes of the financial dilemma of the rails is apparent. Also one of the factors in national unemployment. A more reasonable attitude toward the management and a more generous sharing of the work to be done—and the pay to be received—on the part of the brotherhoods would be beneficial to roads and to the great majority of workers alike.

WHAT GERMANY ACTUALLY GOT

When the Germans goose-stepped into Austria three months ago, the impression got abroad that the Reich would be materially strengthened by taking the 7,000,000 inhabitants, and their belongings, under the protective care of its totalitarian wing. If any such idea ever entered the mind of the realistic Fuehrer, it must have, ere this, been recognized as delusion. Most of the assets, except the additional cannon fodder, have, upon closer examination, turned into liabilities.

Of course the $400,000,000 in foreign debts have already been liquidated by repudiation. But there are other problems which cannot be solved merely by ignoring them. For instance, when Hitler's adviser on matters pertaining to money, Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, dashed down to Vienna to appropriate Austrian gold reserves, he found only $43,000,000. Another $32,000,000 was banked abroad—in London. It is evident that long-drawn-out court proceedings will have to be instituted to acquire possession. Even then, Schacht fears the funds will be diverted to the payment of repudiated debts instead of to the vaults in Berlin.

A much more serious economic disease for the doctor to cure is to be found in the fact that Austria's imports exceed its exports. During the first four months of this year the adverse balance was $7,600,000, which, when added to Germany's $28,400,000, creates a complication calling for abilities not even possessed by the able Dr. Schacht.

According to League of Nations figures, little Austria, insufficient in agricultural production, has to buy abroad half as much in foodstuffs as Germany, proper, nine times as large in population. In April, of all intents and purposes the first month under Hitler, greater Germany imported $10,480,000 more in goods than were exported. Of this, however, only $2,800,000 came into Germany proper. The remainder went into Austria, the newly acquired "asset."

AN UNCEASING WAR

While peace-loving citizens shiver in dread at possibilities of another major conflict between nations of the world, and while war rends Spain and China, man wages relentless battle against enemies other than man—insects and bacteria.

They would destroy him, so he seeks to destroy them. Using the adaptability which aided him to rise to his present development, he borrows the technique of human warfare in his bitter fight against the insects.

In Alabama and Florida federal and state scientists hurl flames and poisons against the destructive white-fringed beetle. They use a trench system larger than that of a major war between men.

Consider the enemy. They seem such tiny, helpless things, the insects; but they are far from that. Even insects harmless to man or his works possess amazing equipment for survival. Many species are far better fitted for the struggle for existence than many men. J. Henri Fabre, the great French scientist, who devoted 50 years to the study of the fantastic insect world, constantly comments on this point.

And all are familiar with the remarkable order in the life of the bee and the ant, the architectural prowess of the spider, the breath-taking life cycle of the caterpillar. Karel Capek, the famous Czech dramatist, pictured the triumph of the insect in his satire, "The World We Live In."

As against the insect, so against bacteria the wars go on. Laboratories are the theaters of operation. There take place tremendous campaigns, with the enemy numbered in billions. The head of a pin often holds more "individuals" than Napoleon or Alexander ever dreamed of engaging.

There are wars and wars.

His mates at Sing Sing are lectured by Dick Whitney on the joys of travel in far parts. And yet some say all irksomeness is gone from prison life.

East is east and west is west. Japan batters down Chinese sales resistance with shot and shell. Here, the customer is always right.

"Beyond the Alps!" is the traditional challenge to the young grad. There may be a WPA Edelweiss planting project on the other side.

ISOLATED AMERICA

(From the Montgomery Advertiser.)
The official monthly report of the Federal Reserve Board confirms what is generally known: the industrial recession is more severe in the United States than in any other country. But—and this is of utmost importance—the board report admits that industrial production in other countries is kept up largely by the manufacture of war materials.

"Neither England nor any other industrial country abroad," the Federal Reserve Board says, "is experiencing a recession as precipitous as that which developed in the United States last autumn, although the business decline in Belgium—particularly in the iron and steel industry—has been marked and minor downward turns are in evidence elsewhere."

"Among the major industrial countries the situation is mixed. There has been no interruption, other than seasonal, to the steady advance of German production. In Japan output of heavy industries has continued to grow under the impetus of war needs, while production of several consumption goods, especially of textiles, has declined."

Law Against Ransom Pay to Kidnapers Favored in Survey; 67% Would Approve Measure Similar to Canada's, but Minority Believe It Could Not Be Enforced.

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

NEW YORK, June 23.—As Franklin Pierce McCall awaits the electric chair for the kidnapping and murder of five-year-old Skeegh Cash in Princeton, Fla., American public opinion believes that this country should have a law such as Canada has, making it a crime for anyone to pay ransom to a kidnaper.

The anti-ransom proposal, put before voters in a nation-wide institute survey, is highly controversial since it runs counter to the instincts of parents to save their child no matter what the cost. Yet the survey found that opinion on the issue is remarkably clear-cut, with a majority of nearly 2 to 1 in favor of the law. Men and women in every state were asked:

"Do you think it should be against the law for a family to pay ransom to a kidnaper?"

The vote was:
Yes 67%
No 33%

This one-sided result indicates that the American public has been so deeply stirred by recent kidnappings that it is willing to go to almost any length to stop the crime.

The most typical comment of voters favoring an anti-ransom law is that "it will take the profits out of kidnapping."

One voter declared that while the law might not stop kidnappers committed for sadistic or vengeful reasons, it might discourage racketeers from attempting to make a business out of the crime. Many voters also expressed the opinion that since kidnappers are seldom returned anyway, even if ransom is paid, we might just as well have the law. In this connection one woman columnist, Dorothy Dunbar Bromley, recently pointed out that leaving the parents free to negotiate has failed to restore the victims in four out of seven cases—the Lindbergh, Mattson, Levine and Cash kidnappings.

Can Law Be Enforced?
Voters who, on the other hand, oppose an anti-ransom law declare that such a measure would be difficult to enforce because parents would not co-operate. A typical statement of this view-

For full collection 54% 47%
For reduction 37 42
For cancellation 9 11

Thus it seems clear that, two months ago at least, any move toward the revision of the law would have found the public in an increasingly receptive mood. The Institute is now conducting a new survey which will measure the voters' current attitude toward the debt issue.

WAR DEBT REVISION

FAVORED BY PUBLIC

The return of Ambassador Kennedy from England to confer with President Roosevelt brings up anew the question of settling England's war debt to the United States.

His talks with the President come at a time when the trend of American public opinion is toward revision of the debts. Last March, for the first time, a majority of voters in an Institute survey favored reduction or cancellation of the sums owed us by foreign countries, instead of trying to collect in full.

For full collection 54% 47%

For reduction 37 42

For cancellation 9 11

Thus it seems clear that, two months ago at least, any move toward the revision of the law would have found the public in an increasingly receptive mood. The Institute is now conducting a new survey which will measure the voters' current attitude toward the debt issue.

SILHOUETTES

While looking for the rainbow
And its pot of fairy gold,

He's penniless and old.

Peculiar

Police Methods.

The work done by the traffic department of Atlanta's police force during the past year or so has been, in the vast majority of instances, fully worthy of praise. Traffic conditions are yet far from perfect, of course, but no reasonable person can deny there has been improvement.

However, in every good record by any group of men so large there must be exceptions. The odd little incident perpetrated by some unthinking individual draws attention and is apt to spoil the reputation of all.

Therefore it seemed to me that mention here of a few of those thoughtless errors on the part of some traffic policemen might help to draw attention to the really excellent work done, usually, by most of them and, at the same time, perhaps prevent repetition of the same surely, they did without realizing their error.

Blocking Traffic.

It was on DeKalb avenue, some mornings ago,
A motorcycle officer had halted a motorist for some reason or other. What the special cause of the stoppage was, I don't know.

When our street car arrived the officer was standing beside the halted automobile at the curb, talking with the driver. That was all right. But the officer's motorcycle was parked in the middle of the street. And crosswise.

That motorcycle halted street cars and other automobiles in both directions, for the entire time during which the officer decided to continue his remarks to the offending driver.

I doubt if the offense for which the man had been halted was actually as serious as that perpetrated by the officer himself.

Penalizing The Poor.

A poor old man, driving a decrepit car of ancient vintage, approached a corner with one of those "Stop" signs on the curb. No traffic light. He brought his car so close to a complete stop it was, in effect, halted. Though, actually, the wheels didn't quite cease moving. His pause was more than ample, however, for a glance up and down the street which showed there was no traffic coming either way.

And a traffic officer stopped him and gave him a ticket for not obeying, literally, the stop sign. Now, I'm not saying we shouldn't stop at these signs. We should. They are valuable and necessary for our own protection and that of others.

I happen to know, however, that the old man in this instance doesn't make more than $10 a week and is having a hard time to exist on that amount. And to compel him to go to traffic court and pay a fine amounting to several dollars for such a merely nominal offense seemed to me to be cruel. Surely a warning would have been sufficient.

This Is Funny.

The next incident is funny. It is about another "Stop" sign. This particular time there were two motorcycle officers, out of sight around the corner, seeking to trap unwary motorists who didn't obey that sign.

Those officers must have wondered why everyone was so meticulous about stopping that day. As a matter of fact there were three youngsters, two boys and a girl, who were around the corner in the other direction. And they were running out in the street and shouting to each motorist as he, or she, slowed down for the turn. They were yelling:

"Watch out! Police trap around the corner. Be sure to stop." And everybody stopped.

Twenty-five Years Ago Today.

From The Constitution of Tuesday, June 24, 1913:

"Washington, June 23.—President Wilson smashed another White House tradition today. Boreheaded, Mr. Wilson walked out of the White House drive almost to the gate to say good-by to one of his callers, A. Popham Lobb, colonial secretary for Bermuda."

And Fifty Years Ago.

From The Constitution of Sunday, June 24, 1888:

"Chicago, June 23.—The convention is deadlocked. In the opinion of nearly everybody here, who is supposed to know anything about it, today's work means that Blaine is the only key to the solution of the complex problem, and that he will be made the choice of the convention."

One Word More

By RALPH MCGILL.

Joe Louis Gets $320,000.
Alabama parents, received approximately $320,000 for two minutes and forty seconds of ring work in beating Max Schmeling, representing the German nation and its asserted physical and mental superiority.

The German nation had set this fight on a national basis of German against American. That the American won will please all those who think the world's heavyweight championship carries with it national prestige. No one, however, ever wore the royal robes of the ring with as much prestige as John L. Sullivan. He was the world's champion and he went about his land, into barrooms and must-halls, offering to fight any man in the place. He was the first and the last of his kind. All others since him have been businessmen and not one, wearing the fictitious crown, has gone around offering to prove, free of charge, his right to wear it.

The prize ring is the magic carpet, the Aladdin's lamp, of the modern world. No profession produces stories as bizarre. It reached out and took a shambling Italian giant with rags about his feet and made him a champion with hand-made shoes on his feet and a luxurious car in which to ride. It took an ambitious young hobo and made him rich and famous and the friend of those in the seats of the mighty. Thousands flock to the Jack Dempsey restaurant in New York just to see him and have him scribble his name on a menu. It produced another of its stranger-than-fiction stories in Joe Louis, born on a cotton plantation near West Point, Ga.; uneducated, squeezed by poverty and now earning $320,000 in less than three minutes. He is worth approximately $1,000,000, owns much property, behaves himself and saves his money.

It will be interesting to see if he keeps it. Only Eugene Tunney retired from the ring with money and kept it. Jack Dempsey lost a fortune earned in the ring and then made another in business. Most of the others died in want.

It Is, of Course, Quite Brutal.

Prize fighting is, of course, quite brutal. The idea is to hurt the other man before he hurts you. The ultimate aim is to knock him unconscious for a period at least long enough for a count of ten.

Twice now Max Schmeling has been hammered to the ropes and battered while his brain was dull and his reflexes unable to protect him. It was because of this that he was hurt by Louis. Many men have been killed by blows in the ring. Schmeling was lucky. Only four years ago, Max Biers's fists had the German hanging limp on the ropes, his mouth open, his eyes glazed, blood dripping from the cut corners of his lips. Prize fighting of that kind is brutal.

And brutality is not nice to see. This battering about the head brings on a disease which is recognized by the medical profession as an occupational disease. It is called, in the argot of the ring, "Fighter's Dementia," or being "punch drunk." Because of many smotherings in the brain and the scar tissue which forms in their healing, the brain permanently is affected. The more pronounced cases of it cause the victim to walk so that his heels strike first. He is likely to have a foolish smile on his face, and to mutter to himself as he walks. The reflexes are impaired.

Any ring reporter who has been to Madison Square Garden or to the large fight promoters' offices before major heavyweight combats, has seen the battered unknowns of the ring who hang about the entrances and who sit in chairs in the reception rooms. They seek free tickets and borrow small sums. The marks of their trade are on them. The skin is thickened above the eyes. There are small, white scars in the skin above the eyes. It cuts easily, because the skin at those places, because there is no padding between it and the bone. Nature, seeking to remedy it, thickens the skin.

Any fighter who has been in the ring for just a few years develops that thickened skin above the eyes. Usually there are thin scars about the corners of the mouth. Few escape without a damaged ear or two.

For every Dempsey and Tunney and Louis there literally are thousands of unknowns who, human punching bags, become "punch drunk" old men, walking on their heels and mumbling to themselves at the ripe old age of 35 or 40.

It Traveled Far, That Punch.

Schmeling a bit over the borderland of consciousness, traveled far. It crossed the Atlantic and struck one Joe Goebbels, the genius who heads the propaganda department of the German government. Before his first fight with Joe Louis, Schmeling was disowned by the Germans. When he won they made him a hero and paraded him before the German youth as an example of the superiority of the German over the greatest fighters in the world. He was to be given a post as one of the heads of the German youth movement when he returned victorious over Louis, the American, and won the world's heavyweight championship.

It will be interesting now, to wait and see what happens to Schmeling. Hitler and Goebbels will not care for a defeated fighter. Especially will they not care for one who was defeated in two minutes and 40 seconds. There will be no public turning of the back on Schmeling.

Meanwhile those who know the German well will be insisting he retire. Another beating at the hands of Baer and Louis and all those lines may go out of his lean face and all the intelligence from his eyes. He would not look pretty, walking "on his heels," mumbling to himself of his days of triumph.

Worthless Wild Horses Are Pure Arabian Stock That Wasn't Given a Chance

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Years ago, when people came over from Europe like migrating birds and settled in communities of their own kind, they preserved for a time the language and customs of their native land.

Native Americans, judging each foreign race by these poor immigrants, would say to one another: "Persians (or whatever they were called) are a dirty, ignorant and backward race, far below us." The speaker, as a rule, was a backwoods product, with little education and no experience of the world. If he had visited the native land of those he scorned and ridiculed, he would have seen many cultured and polished gentlemen of the same breed who would have looked upon him as a low variety of trash.

For in every race there are apparently two races—one at the bottom, ignorant, uncouth and lousy; one at the top, washed and educated and trained in fine manners.

How can people of the same racial stock be so different? If there is one run in the litter, it was pushed away from the source of supply.

The ancestors of the finest were half-naked savages, hairy and verminous. Ability to fight got them to the top, but subsequent generations were superior because they had superior opportunities. The lowest were held down by poverty and ignorance; the middle class were those who had fought their way up, halfway to the top. The same racial stock does not produce three distinct classes if all are given the same advantages for a dozen generations. If it takes only three generations to make a gentleman, they must be generations well supplied with ready cash.

The children of good fortune, proud of their superiority and unaware of the reason for it, feel little obligation to improve the less-favored portions of their race. It is more fun to feel superior than to be your brother's keeper.

But indifference to the backward is a short-sighted and suicidal policy.

You may educate your children, but if three-fourths of the children aren't educated, what chance will yours have to control America in the future?

It is foolish to keep an unprofitable orchard when the trees would bear good fruit if properly cared for.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.

Pious Slander.

NEW YORK.—Someone has sent me a marked copy of the Sunday School Times issue of April 10 wherein a young Jew writing from Palestine to the "Palestine Review" is quoted in an expression of happiness over the fact that he lives in the Holy Land, amongst his own people, free at last from persecution and Jews. The Jewish writer winds up his article with the following paragraph: "Then there are the marvelous nights with a million stars. There are ghosts everywhere of Abraham and Jacob, Isaiah and Jeremiah, Akiba and Bar Cochba. Every step tells a story—Biblical, Talmudic, medieval, modern...."

These remarks are followed by a word of comment by the editor of the Sunday School Times as follows: "But nothing of Christ. He is the Great Forgotten One! And not merely forgotten. Dr. Christie writes in the British Weekly that 'multitudes in Israel' are determined to blot out the geographical evidence of Christianity (in Palestine) and warnings (have been given to 'take away your dead Christ from our Land.' The Sea of Galilee has been desecrated. No Jew has raised his voice to advance Christian rights in the Holy Land. The German pietist colonies in Palestine have been threatened. 'We will turn you out of Palestine as you are doing to us in Germany. Your fathers may have bought that land, but it is ours.'"

As a frequent visitor to Palestine and one who watches carefully what has been going on in the Holy Land since the League of Nations set that country aside as a National Home for the Jewish people, I want to ask the editor of the Sunday School Times why he did not get his quotations from "Der Stuermer," a real anti-Semitic paper published in Germany, instead of from such a paltry imitation as the British Weekly?

"Multitudes in Israel" are determined to blot out the geographical evidence of Christianity in Palestine, he says. Let the Sunday School Times name, not multitudes, but one single Jew who has made such an insane statement. Blot out geographical evidence of Christianity? It sounds big, important, fantastic even. But how is it done? Fill in the Sea of Gennesareth, perhaps? Like the Dutch have turned the Zuyder sea into dry land? Or uproot the Garden of Gethsemane? That garden is in Christian hands, dear editor, and the Christians are letting it go to rot.

In Palestine the Jewish people have made an arid land bloom like a garden. They have wiped out disease and are wiping out poverty amongst the Arabs. They have built schools and clinics and hospitals and moved the credit banks. They have perfected systems which make it possible for a better breed of cattle to survive. They have dried up swamps.

That is not desecration, Mr. Editor. That's serving God by deed and action! If you have not raised their voice in the advance of Jewish rights in Palestine, it is that those rights are not menaced by anyone. There is no persecution of Jews.

LUTHERANS STUDY UNION PROPOSAL

Vote Expected Today on Plan to Bring Branches Into 'Fellowship.'

ST. LOUIS, June 23.—(AP)—The question of intersynodical union of the two branches of the Lutheran church was presented today to the triennial meeting of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri and other states.

Definite action on the proposal, by which "church fellowship between the Missouri synod and the American Lutheran church" would result, was expected tomorrow. Discussion of the question gave way to other business after a formal resolution of approval was submitted.

The committee on union pointed out it had found no fundamental doctrinal difference between the two churches during a series of conferences with representatives of the American Lutheran church. Four non-fundamental points remain at variance, however, and the resolution urged continued efforts to settle these differences.

As a result of the inter-church discussions, the American Lutheran church was ready to "enter into pulpits and altar fellowship" with the Missouri synod, the convention was informed.

Should the resolution be approved, the question will be submitted to the American Lutheran church at its synodical meeting in August.

The union would not be a merger of the two branches of the church, but a complete union might follow in the future, leaders favoring the proposal said.

The convention selected Fort Wayne, Ind., for its 1941 meeting place.

3 Boys Who Took $25,000 Yacht, Sailed 2,000 Miles, May Face Court

SANTA CRUZ, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—Three high school boys who sailed off in Lew K. Foote's $25,000 yacht without his permission and kept going for 2,000 miles probably will have to explain to juvenile court, authorities here said today.

Dispatches from Mexico City quoted the head of the Mexican maritime office communications department as saying the yacht Tira was detained at Puerto Vallarta on the western Mexican coast because her papers were not in order and because the owner had filed complaints in connection with the yacht's disappearance.

The boat was taken from a wharf here 28 days ago. Foote said he would leave by plane for Puerto Vallarta tomorrow and that he would return the boat, an auxiliary ketch, to Santa Cruz alone.

District Attorney Ben Knight said the youths probably would be turned over to juvenile authorities. The youths believed to be aboard the 52-foot craft are Lyle Tara, 17; James Henninger, 17; and William Grace, 16, all of Santa Cruz.

CLUB WILL REVIVE CHILDREN'S OUTINGS

Exchange Group To Entertain Those Handicapped and Orphans.

Outings for crippled children and orphans will be revived by the Exchange Club here this summer, according to the Rev. Theodore V. Morrison, newly elected president.

Mr. Morrison, who is assistant rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, said that a few years ago, it was part of the club's contribution to community welfare to do work among underprivileged children. In addition, he said the club plans to place Christmas trees in both colored and white wards at Grady hospital every year.

Other officers of the club are James R. Brumby, vice president; Van Jernigan, secretary, and Alan B. Ford, treasurer.

Committee members appointed by President Morrison are Frank O'Garra, Marcus Cook and Homer Sanford, attendance; Chess Lagomarsino Jr. and Joe Asher, program; Evans Joseph and Marthame Sanders, publicity; L. J. Thibodeau, George Tidwell and Dr. Carroll M. West, membership. Philip Alston Jr., Joe Prickett and Cy Wallace, fellowship, and Henry Powell, Martin Hendrick and Hurd J. Crain, community service.

REBEL EXPLANATION SOUGHT BY BRITAIN

London Orders Representative to Return Home With Version of Attacks.

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the house of commons today that Britain's representative to insurgent Spain had been instructed to return home for consultations on repeated insurgent attacks on British shipping.

There was no hint, however, that Great Britain was breaking off her "unofficial" relations with insurgent Generalissimo Franco.

The prime minister, ruffled in the face of a bitter opposition attack because of the sinking yesterday of two British vessels by insurgent bombers, said Sir Robert Hodgson, British commercial agent in Burgos, was instructed to get an explanation from the insurgents and then come to England with that explanation.

Laborite Clement R. Attlee said protests by the prime minister to General Franco only elicited further sinkings of British craft—the latest being the freighters Thorpe and Sunion yesterday.

There is no secret that these attacks, come the Balaes Islands are at the British fleet's mercy. They can be blockaded and their airbase attacked.

The fiery war-time Premier David Lloyd George shook his fist and agreed with Attlee. Chamberlain looked at Lloyd George and said coolly, "In his 76th year Lloyd George is ready to plunge this country into war; I am not going to take that risk."

REBELS' OFFENSIVE REPORTED BROKEN

HENDAYE, France (At the Spanish Frontier), June 23.—(AP)—Spanish government dispatches said tonight the insurgent offensive against Valencia, former provisional capital, had been broken.

They reported that on both wings of the front in eastern Spain, before Castellon de la Plana and Teruel, government defenses withstood insurgent assaults. In the south, in Cordoba province, the insurgent campaign in the Penarroya sector slowed to a halt in a blistering heat wave.

Georgia Ranks Eighth As Producer of Wine

Georgia ranked eighth among wine-producing states of the nation, it was revealed yesterday with the announcement that the state had manufactured a total of 5,700 gallons of wine during April.

Only 21 of the 32 states which regularly engage in the production of wine reported for April, a survey by the Internal Revenue Bureau disclosed, the remainder finding they had a sufficient supply on hand for bottling purposes.

PARITY IN FREIGHT RATES

Editor Constitution: Grateful appreciation for today's editorial, "A Crucial Issue." It was fine and timely.

Any cost and efficiency expert who walks into an industrial office will say, "show me your freight rate sheet and I'll do the rest, and I mean comparative rates." He'll say that in a country store, a village, a town, a city, and to entire sections. That in a nutshell accounts for the long industrial oppression of the entire southern section of these United States. "Like a community of atrophied superior idiots, we of the south, where nature does the work, have for two-thirds of a century watched other sections of the country that know the meaning of a freight rate—rates we never had, or even tried to get, until that significant hearing, at Birmingham, April 12, where 75 of the biggest attorneys of the eastern railroads resisted the maiden effort of the Southern Governor's conference for rate parity.

Seventy-odd years of industrial bondage because of lack of facilities which had equal rates. That heaven, the really supernal one, may forgive us, but we can never forgive ourselves. However, we can go to Buffalo, N. Y., July 12 and hear the final rounds and cheer gallant Judge Watkins to victory in the rebuttals.

O. C. JENSEN HEADS RESTAURANT GROUP

Atlanta Association Names Other Officers, Hears National President.

O. C. Jensen, Atlanta restaurant operator, was elected to head the Atlanta Restaurant Association last night. He succeeds J. W. LeBlanc. Other new officers include Ed Lindsey, first vice president, and L. R. Lee, second vice president.

The following directors were elected: Sam Dardarian, Al Newton, W. T. Moore, T. N. Routso and C. A. McKown.

Members of the advisory board, together with the executive secretary, will be named at the first meeting of the directors, which will be held early in July.

Principal speaker last night was Henry I. Dunnock, president of the National Restaurant Association. In talking on the "Future of the Restaurant Industry," Dunnock said that no retail operator has a better chance to serve the public successfully than the restaurateur and that with the proper kind of service the "dining out" will grow in popularity.

Robert J. Wilson, field secretary of the national association; J. W. LeBlanc, retiring president of the Atlanta association, and C. M. McMillan, executive secretary of the Atlanta association, made brief talks in which the progress of the association during the first year of operation was cited.

A program of entertainment and a buffet supper concluded the meeting.

A talk by Henry H. Joyner featured the program of a special meeting of the Atlanta section, Institute of Radio Engineers, at the Atlanta Athletic Club last night.

His subject was "Crystal Band Filters, Magnetic Generation of Harmonics, Stabilized Feed-back Amplifiers and their Uses in Wide-band Carrier Telephone Systems."

Local radio men and engineers representing telephone and power companies attended.

Shall Andy Raise 10-Cent Nickel? He Asks Voters in Oompah Race

Perhaps 25-Center Would Be More in Keeping With These Billion-Dollar Times, Candidate Suggests; Dick Tracy Attacks Gump Campaign Tactics.

Editor's Note: Advice from the public on whether he should raise his election platform—the ten-cent nickel—in his race for Oompah of Constitution comic characters is sought by Andy Gump. Andy made a surprise announcement of his decision, to ask the voters directly for counsel, at a gathering of thousands of supporters of the various candidates in the Oompah contest last night. The editor agreed to receive the communications. How do you, and how will the voters feel about it, Colonel?

By COLONEL WHOOPEN BLAST, Political Commentator Extraordinaire.

Personally, Ed., I believe Andy's idea has merit. With the race running as close as it is, with all candidates on their toes and resorting to highly interesting methods to wheedle additional votes in the official balloting, July 4, I think Andy is well advised to go directly to the public and ask for advance word from them about things. It's the people's government, when all is said and done, and I feel it is their privilege to be heard, at any time, and in any way, they may wish.

To speak freely, I feel that Andy showed the right spirit when he offered to raise the ante in regard to his ten-cent nickel.

"I believe in keeping in step with the trend of the times," Candidate Gump declared, as the throng cheered. "Everybody's thinking in larger terms these days—a billion isn't anything any more."

"So I'm asking the voters directly one question. It is this: Shall I offer to raise the mere ten-cent nickel to a larger, more rounded, twenty-five-cent nickel if I am elected Oompah? It seems to me the twenty-five-cent nickel has a more imposing sound to it. It ought to go farther than the ten-cent nickel (being two and a half times as big) and ought to buy more, accordingly."

"It wouldn't take much changing of the original program of mine to effect the switch. All we'd have to do is make the price of everything twelve and a half cents instead of a nickel, as in the original plan. Come to think of it, just to deal in round numbers, I could offer to make it a thirty-cent nickel. The thing sort of grows on you, doesn't it?"

There was, as is not unusual in these political gatherings, an interruption. Candidate Dick Tracy offered objection.

"This Gump is trying to take an unfair advantage," he charged, accusingly. "He knows that one of the best ways to get people interested in your proposition is to ask advice on how to make it better. I'd bet Andy'd been reading Dale Carnegie if I thought—and I don't—that he'd been reading anything."

"But I claim the same right. If Andy can change his ten-cent nickel to a twenty-five-cent nickel right when things are at their hottest, I think I'm entitled to change my triple-parking scheme for ending traffic to fourble-parking—or even fiveble-parking. In the same way I figure to fourble-mullins ought to be able to ask the public if he should change his eight ball to the fifteen or even the cue ball."

"Also," continued Dick, whilst Andy considered this suggestion, "I'm for a swing around the state for all candidates. I'd favor letting the people of Carrollton, Monroe, Winder and Athens, Barnesville and Douglasville, Forsyth and LaGrange, Newnan and Monticello, Toccoa and Vidalia, Covington and Talbotton—all of the folks in all of the pretty towns and out on the farms—help advise the candidates too."

Moon Mullins came forward at this moment with enthusiastic approval.

"That's a fine idea," Moon proclaimed. "It'd be a good thing to get around and see all the folks. Not only that—we might run across Kayo, somewhere, and I'm still looking for him."

Andy Gump found his voice at last.

"You're right," he shouted. "Not only Kayo—we might find that Jackson county Wog of his, too. That's what interests me—that and the $100,000.00 offered for the Wog as an exhibit."

How do the voters feel about these propositions? The Oompah editor—willing to a fault to help—will receive suggestions from all Constitution readers. The straw ballot is a preliminary to the voting on July 4.

J. L. TYE JR. ELECTED GOVERNOR BY BAR

Atlanta Association Hears 3 Speakers at Capital City Club.

John L. Tye Jr. was elected governor of the Georgia Bar Association last night by the Atlanta Bar Association meeting at the Capital City Club.

Tye will go to Macon today to meet with governors of other circuits to formulate new rules and regulations of the state association.

Three speakers were heard last night. The session was in honor of Judges John D. Humphries, E. E. Pomeroy, W. E. Thomas, Virgil Moore, Hugh Dorsey and Paul Elmer, of Fulton superior court.

Joseph B. Cumming, of Augusta, new president of the Georgia Bar Association, traced the history of the legal profession in this country and declared that lawyers "must co-operate and co-ordinate in their work to become articulate."

Judge Moore pointed to some of the requisites of good judges, declaring that men who sit on the bench should be fair, deliberate, human and wise.

Judge J. Harold Hawkins, of the Blue Ridge circuit, declared most of the prominent judges in Georgia today are "country boys who have gone to the big cities." He added that country lawyers today are as promising and as intelligent on legal questions as their city brothers.

Judge Augustus M. Roan, governor of the Stone Mountain judicial district, and Young H. Fraser, president of the Edgewood Bar Association, were present.

LOCAL PWA OFFICE TO SHIFT QUARTERS

Will Be Moved to Hurt Building This Week End.

Preparations are being made by the Public Works Administration to move this week end from its present location on the seventh floor of the Citizens & Southern Bank building to the Hurt building. It was announced yesterday by H. T. Cole, regional PWA administrator.

Lack of accommodations was assigned as the reason for the move by the administrator, who declared that the rapidly increasing responsibility entailed in carrying out the new PWA program made necessary the acquisition of more room for his staff. At present about 150 persons are employed by the regional office.

Present offices have been occupied since 1933, PWA using more than 18,000 square feet of room. Administrator Cole said yesterday his organization would occupy the quarters formerly tenanted by the business office of the Southern Bell Telephone Company on the first floor, and would have additional quarters on the second, third and fourth floors.

Pictures With Settings in South Holdovers and Westerns Billed

Grand Signs "The Toy Wife," Fox Offers "Josette," Capitol, "Heart of Arizona," Paramount, "The Adventures of Robin Hood," and Rialto, "Holiday."

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

It's a trip to Louisiana for Atlanta moviegoers this week. Two movies filmed in a New Orleans background command the top billing in the week's announcement of film attractions. "The Toy Wife" is a story of the old ante-bellum New Orleans, and "Josette" is cast in a more modern atmosphere.

Robert Young, however, is not affected by the time element. He appears as a "great lover" in both pictures, making love to Academy Winner Luise Rainer in "The Toy Wife" behind the back of Husband Melvyn Douglas and then battles Don Ameche for the affections of Simone Simon in "Josette."

"The Toy Wife" heads the attractions at Loew's Grand and "Josette" is billed at the Fox.

"Holiday" continues for another week at the Rialto, featuring Cary Grant and Katharine Hepburn in their second smash comedy hit.

"The Adventures of Robin Hood" has been held over at Paramount. It stars Errol Flynn in the screen role originally played by Douglas Fairbanks Sr. Olivia De Havilland is the lovely Maid Marian.

Our old favorite of the westerns, Bill (Hopalong) Boyd, returns to the Capitol Sunday in "Heart of Arizona," the new outdoor romance which opens a week's engagement at the Capitol theater, starting Sunday.

William Boyd, again playing the title role, sounds the call to arms when a crew of rustlers, who have been terrorizing the country, turn their attentions to a woman rancher, and it is he who is chiefly instrumental in rounding up the crew of cattle thieves.

On the stage, also starting Sunday, the Capitol will offer a new variety vaudeville revue, "Stork Club Scandals," featuring a cast of 25 performers.

Capitol's current screen hit, "Hunted Men," starring Mary Carlisle, Lloyd Nolan, Anthony Quinn and others, ends Saturday and does "Streamlined Revue" on the stage.

At 9 o'clock tonight the theater will present another of its entertaining amateur contests, at which time two fine prizes will be awarded to the winners selected by audience applause.

ROBIN HOOD REMAINS AT PARAMOUNT

"The Adventures of Robin Hood," one of the most nearly perfect technicolor films yet produced, is being held in Atlanta for another week and Errol Flynn and Olivia De Havilland are now emoting on the Paramount theater screen.

The picture tells the story of the adventures of the gallant knight of Sherwood forest and how he performed the almost unbelievable feat to rob the rich that the poor might feast.

Technically the picture is well produced, the story moves swiftly and the acting is good. For those of you who missed it during the first week, here is a picture you should see.

RIALTO HOLDS OVER "HOLIDAY"

The Rialto is holding over Columbia Production's "Holiday," with Katharine Hepburn and Cary Grant in the leading roles.

The producer, Everett Riskin, and the director, George Cukor, have combined their efforts in a way that has brought one of the most perfectly arranged pictures ever made. In every detail, down to the last item of setting, lighting, costumes and tempo, the picture expresses the atmosphere of the exciting modern romance.

Miss Hepburn portrays the character of Linda in a way that makes the rich, yet unconventional, girl, live in new manner, while Cary Grant is ideal as the independent, intelligent young businessman who wants freedom to enjoy himself before he grows too old. Others in the cast who win new distinctions for themselves include Doris Nolan, Edward Everett Horton, Lew Ayres, Blinn Barnes and Jean Dixon.

WESTERN SHOW SIGNED BY RHODES

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy, co-starred for the fourth time, introduce to the 1938 audience eight new song numbers in "The Girl of the Golden West," opening Friday at the Rhodes theater.

Based on David Belasco's play, "The Girl of the Golden West," is the story of Mary, owner of the Polka saloon and dance hall in a Californian mining town in 1850. She is loved by the sheriff, Jack Rance, but she falls in love with Ramer, a bandit, believing him to be an army officer.

Among the songs sung by Miss MacDonald and Eddy are "Shadows on the Moon," "Soldiers of Fortune," "Sunup to Sundown," "Senorita," "Mariachi," "The Wind in the Trees," "Who Are We to Say," and "The West Ain't Wild Any More." Other songs by Miss MacDonald include "Dream of Love" and "Ave Maria."

2 GRAFT PROBE TRIALS ARE SET FOR JULY 13

Two city policemen, indicted on bribery charges as the outgrowth of the law enforcement graft probe, will be tried in Fulton superior court July 13. The cases of G. B. Scoggins and F. J. Aycock were placed on the calendar yesterday.

The present grand jury, nearing the end of its term, will return no more indictments in the graft investigation. Prosecutor E. E. Andrews is planning to take a vacation before returning to try the cases.

SUICIDE IS VERDICT IN DEATH OF GROGAN

A coroner's verdict of death from a self-inflicted bullet wound while temporarily dazed was returned yesterday in the case of T. J. Grogan, of 634 Cooper street.

N. W., whose body was found Wednesday in a car in the rear of his home just after a shot had been heard.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Clarke and R. A. Edmondson. Burial will be in Marietta City cemetery.

1,900 GRADUATED BY STATE COLLEGES

Record Set; Summer School Enrollment Breaks All Session Marks.

Nineteen hundred students were graduated by the 16 units of the University System of Georgia this year to set a new record, the Board of Regents announced yesterday.

This exceeded by 314 the number graduated by the same institutions in 1937.

While enrollment in Georgia colleges is steadily increasing during regular sessions, (the units having 3,500 more students than five years ago), the summer school at the University of Georgia is also breaking enrollment records.

More than 2,000 are registered for the summer quarter this year, Georgia officials announced. Of this number, 1,200 are teachers taking courses in the college of education.

Larger classrooms are having to be found for many groups, B. C. Kinney, business manager, asserted.

The University of Georgia led the state's institutions in the number of graduates this year with 599, with Georgia Tech ranking second with 323.

The Georgia Southwestern College at Americus led the junior colleges with a graduating class of 105.

The six senior colleges graduated 1,282 students while the junior colleges gave diplomas to 489. The negro institutions accounted for 129 graduates.

DISTRICT AUXILIARY RECEIVES HONORS

Atlantans Return From Waycross Legion Convention.

Winning five of the nine awards made at the Waycross convention of the American Legion, Georgia department, members of the Fifth district, American Legion Auxiliary, returned home yesterday with their honors.

Besides the re-election of Mrs. George W. Harris, of College Park, as district president, other honors included the Americanism trophy; an award for unit activity; three stars for increases in membership, which was 125 per cent, placing the district in second place in the state; and the FIDAC prize, which was awarded the Waldo M. Slaton Unit No. 140.

Other Legion awards included a membership trophy, a cash prize for the best poppy poster; departmental and national citations, second place in Americanism, history and music, and fourth in child welfare to the College Park Juniors; departmental and national citations to Harold Byrd unit and Brookhaven and West End units.

LEGION POST TO HEAR STATE OFFICIAL TODAY

Frank C. Shirley, director of the State Department of Welfare, will speak at a luncheon meeting of the Post No. 1, American Legion, at 12:30 o'clock today on the Atlanta hotel roof.

Members also will discuss plans for providing transportation to points of interest for delegates to the national convention of the Women's Overseas Service League, which will be held at the Biltmore hotel July 3-6.

Jimmie Lunceford, King of Swing, Will Play at Sunset Casino Today

Will Introduce Several New Numbers On Program, Which Will Feature Trumpeter, Drummer and Glee Club; Advance Ticket Sale Good.

Jimmie Lunceford, known as the "Sepia King of Swing," and his orchestra will play a one-night engagement at Sunset Casino.

Corner of Magnolia street and Sunset avenue, beginning at 8:30 o'clock tonight.

Lunceford will introduce several new numbers on his program tonight. Most of the new selections are arranged in swing time.

Advance ticket sale for white people has been very good, the management started early Thursday night, and there will also be plenty of tickets on the gate for those attending the performance.

A special ticket gate and a section of reserved seats will be provided for whites.

Paul Webster, the band's outstanding trumpeter and rated as one of the best in the country, and James Crawford, the drummer, will be the chief entertainers for tonight's concert.

Lunceford has played dances at Cornell, Princeton, Duke and many other of the large American universities. He has played before royalty while touring Denmark and Sweden and other points of central Europe. His glee club will be the outstanding feature for tonight's concert.

Lunceford has written many songs, including "Rhythm Is Business" and "Rhythm in My Nursery Rhyme." He will play them to-night with several selections that have been rearranged—"Margie," "My Blue Heaven," "Sophisticated Lady" (a Duke Ellington organization has been rearranged to a "pleasing" tempo by Lunceford), "Dream of You," "Four or Five Times" and the "St. Louis Blues."

Last year he played an extended engagement at the Book-Cadillac hotel, of Detroit, and many theaters in the southwest.

Story of Brother, Sister Reunited By Near Tragedy Wins 'Tip' Prize

Miss Thera V. Adams Receives $5; Other Newsorthy Subjects Bringing $1 Include Consul Who Visited Here and Hen That Lays by Radio Music.

The story and photograph of a brother and sister who were reunited by a near-tragedy after a 16-year separation won the week's first prize of $5 in The Constitution's photo tip contest.

Miss Thera V. Adams, of 7 Laurel avenue, N. W., telephoned the tip and will receive the $5. The story and picture appeared on the front page of The Constitution. The reunion of Pete Ginn and his sister, Ruth Mauldin, resulted when Ruth read that her brother was believed drowned in the Chattahoochee river. He returned safely, however, after a night fighting mosquitoes on the river bank.

Several other Atlantans who have a keen sense of news values are winners of $1. Among them is Mrs. S. C. Hornbuckle, of 947 St. Charles avenue, who telephoned the tip about the family of D. W. Sutton living and cooking in the street because they had no other place to go.

Mrs. J. H. Lopez, of 892 Piedmont avenue, captured another prize for her tip of George Duarte, former consul from Portugal, who was visiting her. The consul was strong in his praise of Atlanta's girls and the cyclorama.

A petunia growing out of a brick wall at the home of Mrs. Rufus H. Groover, at 565 Page avenue, N. E., will mean a dollar for Mrs. J. L. Sutton, of 1007 St. Charles avenue.

Gordon Dickson, of 286 Connecticut avenue, N. E., has a hen that lays only when the radio in his shop is playing. He notified The Constitution and now he is $1 richer.

Mrs. Mittie Henderson, of 208 Lucerne street, Decatur, is another winner for her tip on the story and photograph about a debating society medal made of Georgia gold and awarded more than 100 years ago at Old Franklin College, which later became the University of Georgia. The medal was given to the late J. B. Watts when he attended the college in 1829.

Any happening you think of news interest or with picture possibilities may be a prize winner. Call Walnut 6565 and ask for the Photo Tip Editor.

MRS. STARRETT, 78, DIES; RITES TODAY

East Point Resident Succumbs After Long Illness.

Mrs. Ellen Starrett, 78, of 498 Thompson street, East Point, died at her residence yesterday morning after a long illness.

Born in Hall county, near Gainesville, she was the former Miss Ellen Wade. A resident of this section for the past 40 years, she was a member of the First Baptist church in East Point.

Surviving are three sons, W. I. Starrett, East Point fireman; B. C. and D. C. Starrett, both of East Point; two daughters, Mrs. C. O. Cox, of Hapeville, and Mrs. Alfred Jones, of Wilmington, N. C.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon in the First Baptist church of East Point, conducted by the Rev. W. A. Duncan. Burial will be in Crest Lawn cemetery, under the direction of A. C. Hemperley & Sons.

HAGUE'S ATTORNEYS CALL NO WITNESSES

Legal Arguments Will Start Thursday in 'Free Speech' Suit.

NEWARK, N. J., June 23.—(P)—Taking of testimony in the "free speech" injunction suit against Mayor Frank Hague and fellow Jersey City officials ended in federal court today when the defense rested without calling witnesses.

Legal arguments on the evidence presented by the CIO, American Civil Liberties Union and other plaintiffs will be heard next Thursday.

After this procedure—similar to summations in a jury trial—both sides will submit briefs to Judge William Clark.

On the basis of the briefs and of the records—already swollen to a half-million words in 14 days—the judge will decide whether Hague, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, violated the United States Constitution, the Bill of Rights and the law in waging his self-styled "war on reds and radicals."

Both sides have indicated that, whether Judge Clark granted or refused an injunction, his ruling would be appealed to the third United States circuit court of appeals at Philadelphia.

Judge Clark, whose promotion to the appeals court by President Roosevelt was confirmed last week by the senate, would, under usual procedure, withdraw from consideration of the appeal when it reached the upper court.

Producers, distributors and retailers of milk and milk products will participate in the parade. At least 13 floats and 17 trucks have been entered and others are expected to increase the total to 50 vehicles, McCullough said.

The parade will assemble at 10:30 o'clock at Baker and West Peachtree streets. It will move north to North avenue, east on North avenue to Peachtree, and south on Peachtree through Five Points, continuing down Whitehall to Hunter. At Hunter the parade will turn east to the Capitol, where it will disband.

The nine members representing business, industry, labor, law and the general public will study not only industrial-labor conditions in Great Britain as originally planned, but also employer-employee relations in Sweden.

DEATH POSTPONES VISIT OF ROYALTY

Queen Elizabeth's Mother To Be Buried Monday.

LONDON, June 23.—(P)—The state visit which King George and Queen Elizabeth were to make to France beginning Tuesday was postponed today until July 19 because of the death during the night of the Queen's mother, the Countess of Strathmore and Kinghorne.

The funeral of the Countess, who died after a long illness in her London home early today at 76, was set for Monday at Glamis Castle, family home in Scotland.

On their visit to France for cementing Anglo-French bonds, the King and Queen will remain in the vicinity of Paris until the morning of July 22, when they will leave to dedicate an Australian monument at Villers Bretonneux.

Records show that Gambol has a long criminal record and that he has been charged with a number of offenses ranging from vagrancy to bank robbery. Officers said that his wife received a two-year suspended sentence in 1935 on a forgery charge.

Detectors making the arrest last night were H. R. McCurley, R. R. Bradford, J. A. Preston and H. C. Newton. Gambol's last arrest here was in January when he was charged with killing John Thomas, a negro, on Mitchell street, for which he was later convicted.

MORTUARY

J. C. STOVALL. Funeral services for J. C. Stovall, 84, who died Wednesday at his home near Peach Orchard road, were held yesterday afternoon in Friendship Baptist church, near Douglasville. Burial was in the churchyard.

CAROLANN BANNISTER. Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Nell McGee, of Atlanta, and Mrs. Marie Anderson, of Miami, Fla.; three sons, L. Paul, of Atlanta; and five grandchildren, all of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Park Street Baptist church, conducted by the Rev. L. E. Smith. Burial will be in Hollywood cemetery, under the direction of J. Austin Dillon.

BARBARA'S SECOND MARRIAGE SHAKEN IN DISPUTE WITH HUSBAND OVER SON

LONDON, June 23.—(P)—The second marriage of the former Barbara Hutton into foreign nobility has been shaken by a dispute with her Danish husband over their two-year-old son Lance.

Friends of Count Court Haugwitz-Revellent and the Countess said today that their estrangement, growing over a period of several months, had reached a stage where reconciliation was doubtful.

The Woolworth heiress yesterday obtained a court order to bulwark a tight police guard she had thrown around her Regent's Park mansion.

Her husband was in Paris, staying at the same hotel as her father, Franklin Hutton, who was trying to patch up the quarrel. The two had lunch together and conferred lengthily. The Count afterwards remained silent but Hutton declared:

"It is all a surprise. It is all a mix-up. 'All I can say is that these children have been in some misunderstanding.'"

There were reports the Count might come to London with his father-in-law despite the issuance of the court order authorizing restraining measures to safeguard the Countess and Lance.

He married the Woolworth heiress May 14, 1935, the day after her divorce from Prince Alexis Mdivani. Lance was born February 24, 1936.

Scooter and Truck Collide, Boy Injured

Thomas Frazier, 7, of 122 Howard street, N. E., suffered serious injuries yesterday as his scooter collided with a truck at the intersection of Delano drive and Warren street.

J. W. Petaway, 35, of 186 Lowry street, N. E., driver of the truck, rushed him to Grady hospital after the accident and attaches said he had been severely cut and possibly had a fractured skull.

Officers said the boy was coasting down Delano drive and was unable to stop when he reached the Warren street intersection.

No case was made against Petaway.

Bossie Parade Next Wednesday Being Planned

Floats, trucks and a herd of thoroughbred cows will swing through downtown Atlanta next Wednesday in a parade climaxing observance of National Milk Month.

M. A. McCullough, director of the local celebration announced yesterday.

Producers, distributors and retailers of milk and milk products will participate in the parade. At least 13 floats and 17 trucks have been entered and others are expected to increase the total to 50 vehicles, McCullough said.

The parade will assemble at 10:30 o'clock at Baker and West Peachtree streets. It will move north to North avenue, east on North avenue to Peachtree, and south on Peachtree through Five Points, continuing down Whitehall to Hunter. At Hunter the parade will turn east to the Capitol, where it will disband.

The nine members representing business, industry, labor, law and the general public will study not only industrial-labor conditions in Great Britain as originally planned, but also employer-employee relations in Sweden.

CONVICTED SLAYER IS ARRESTED HERE

Jack Gambol Caught After Police Receive Tip on His Return.

Jack Gambol, 36, who, it is charged, jumped a $5,000 appeal bond here early this year after being convicted of killing a negro, was arrested by city detectives last night seven minutes after they received a tip that he was back in town.

Driving out Ponce de Leon avenue, the officers pulled up to a car in which Gambol and his wife, Kitty, were riding, forced it to the curb and took them both into custody on charges of suspicion.

Records show that Gambol has a long criminal record and that he has been charged with a number of offenses ranging from vagrancy to bank robbery. Officers said that his wife received a two-year suspended sentence in 1935 on a forgery charge.

Detectors making the arrest last night were H. R. McCurley, R. R. Bradford, J. A. Preston and H. C. Newton. Gambol's last arrest here was in January when he was charged with killing John Thomas, a negro, on Mitchell street, for which he was later convicted.

LABOR COMMISSION BEGINS WORK SOON

Members Sail or Prepare to Leave for Europe to Start Study.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(P)—The President's commission to study employer-employee relations abroad will get down to work immediately with the initial meeting set for July 1 in London where they will discover it takes a lot of law to supervise the British industry.

The ink was hardly dry on the members' appointments, announced at Hyde Park yesterday by President Roosevelt before those now in this country either sailed for Europe or prepared to leave within the next few days.

Gerard Swopes, president of the General Electric Company, was on his way today aboard the Queen Mary; Mrs. Anna M. Rosenberg, New York regional director of the Social Security Board, planned to leave tomorrow on the Statendam; and Lloyd K. Garrison, dean of the University of Wisconsin law school, was en route from a Canadian port.

Already in Europe are Robert Watt, representative of the American Federation of Labor in the international labor office at Geneva; William H. Davis, New York attorney, and William E. Ellison, Chalmers, assistant United States labor commissioner at Geneva.

It was understood the other members, Charles Hook, president of the American Rolling Mill Company; Henry I. Hartman, former president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States; and Miss Marion Dickman, a close friend of Mrs. Roosevelt and principal of the Todhunter school of New York, would leave within a few days.

Novel Dallas Marketing Program Puts Cash in Pockets of Farmers

By HERMAN HANCOCK. Staff Correspondent.

DALLAS, Ga., June 23.—More than $300 a week in cash is being turned into the pockets of Paulding farmers through the operation of a Farmers' Co-operative Market plan sponsored by the Dallas Community Service Club and aided by Dallas merchants.

The idea is novel and, according to H. L. Croker, president, and P. B. Latimer Jr., secretary, of the civic organization, it is working "to the mutual advantage of merchants and farmers."

It is a "marketing-to-prosper program" inaugurated about six weeks ago, with about a dozen of the leading stores of the city and scores of farmers participating in the enterprise.

It operates this way: A farmer has a surplus of any product. He comes into Dallas, goes to any one of the stores participating in the co-operative, and offers his product for sale.

The merchant has a current, daily list of price quotations for commodities received from the State Farmers' Market in Atlanta, and buys the products, at listed prices. The farmer is paid in cash if he prefers, or may take all or any part of the value of the products in kind.

W. Max Huff, a trucker, periodically picks up all produce placed in the stores and takes it to Atlanta, where he already has orders for it. In some instances there is no charge for the service, because it already is sold at a profit enough to enable Huff to perform his part of the program. If, however, no sale is already consummated, a small fee is charged by Huff.

"Every group interested in the program is delighted with it," Croker said. "We have made change for the farmer on each exchange. He has a ready market for his surplus, and that means

JAPAN TIGHTENS ECONOMIC BELT

Tokyo Moves to Meet Growing Needs of Undeclared War With China.

TOKYO, June 23.—(P)—The Japanese government announced today further tightening of the nation's economic belt to meet the needs of the undeclared war with China.

The retrenchment program is expected to be put into operation July 15 by implementing economic clauses of the national mobilization law.

This law, passed by parliament March 26, places the life and property of the lowliest citizen as well as the greatest corporation in government hands during "time of war or national emergency."

The government already has invoked sections of the measure requiring police registration of all adults and empowering examination of reports of any business.

The new program, called "mobilization of materials," was announced as "giving priority to the supply of arms, ammunition and export materials."

The government's announcement, declaring "the ultimate end of the current incident (the Chinese-Japanese war) still is very distant," said the inevitability of protracted warfare necessitated further economic control.

Included in the program were: Consumption—Restricted use of metals, chemicals, oil, gasoline, rubber, cotton, wool, linen, leather and lumber and more intensive use of synthetic materials.

Foreign Trade—Further curtailment of exports except war supplies and material necessary for exports, and reconstruction of export trade, including relaxation of the import control law to allow importation of raw materials to be made into exportable articles.

Prices and Money—Control of commodity prices to halt the current upward trend and promotion of thrift among the people by which an estimated $2,320,000,000 would be saved in 1938.

Other Measures—Control of distribution and increased promotion of mining and home industries.

The plan was drawn up by five key ministers, headed by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye, and approved by the cabinet.

Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, naval minister, meanwhile, declared Japan's military necessity. He called the metropolis of southern China "one of the best fortified cities in the world."

He asserted, however, the government would "consider" with sympathy "any proposal for creation of neutral zones" "provided the zones are free from any military establishments or objectives."

CHINESE RECAPTURE TWO FLOOD CITIES. SHANGHAI, June 24.—(Friday).—Chinese armies wading knee-deep through Yellow river flood waters were reported today to have recaptured two cities from which major Japanese forces had been compelled to retreat.

Three hundred miles to the south floods in the Yangtze river basin, heightened by unfavorable weather, combined with stubborn Chinese resistance to hinder the Japanese joint land and naval drive up the river for Hankow, Chinese provisional capital.

Thus floods, age-long despair of the Chinese people, became their chief ally in defense against Tokyo's two main thrusts.

The comparatively light Chinese units, operating effectively through mud and water, used the devastating Yellow river flood to great advantage, where the highly mechanized Japanese armies in inundated Honan province could not advance over fields and highways covered with a thick layer of mud.

The Chinese reported they had recaptured large areas east and south of Chengchow, junction of the strategic east-west Lunghai railway and the Peiping-Hankow railway, running north and south, scene of intense Japanese activity for many weeks.

The defenders said they recaptured Chungmow, on the Lunghai 25 miles east of Chengchow, and Hushin, 30 miles south of Chungmow.

'REBEL' ROTARIAN ELECTED PRESIDENT

Chicagoan Heads Clubby 'Regimentation of Intelligence, Decried.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 23.—(P)—George C. Hager, of Chicago, supported by an assertively insurgent group which charged a reactionary machine was being built up within the organization, was elected president of Rotary International today over Allen Street, of Oklahoma City.

Hager received 2,116 votes, and Street 1,933. The group which supported Hager also had asked an overhauling of the nominating rules. Instead the Rotary council on legislation submitted to the convention a substitute measure to create a committee to survey the election machinery and report next year.

The "regimentation of intelligence" during the World War caused the international bitterness which has kept Europe on the brink of disaster, Rotary International President Maurice DuPerry told the convention today.

Instead of disappearing after the war, DuPerry said, the idea of regimented intellect took root in many parts of the world and became aggravated by virile nationalism and economic stress.

He professed, however, to foresee an avoidance of war because he said the leaders of European nations did not want armed conflict. He said also there was a general belief that another war would mean the destruction of the social and economic structure of civilization.

Without debate the Rotary voting body stepped action on a resolution "abhorring" war as a means of settling international disputes. This was done by "permitting" the sponsoring club in Barking, England, to withdraw it for a study of its "fullest implications."

The delegates also permitted withdrawal of a proposal by Georgia clubs to retire Rotarians past 70 years of age from active memberships and thus open the way for younger men.

H. E. BRYAN DIES; TRANSFER OFFICIAL.

Was Atlanta Resident for More Than 36 Years.

Howard E. Bryan, 56, manager of the Southern Transfer Company and resident of Atlanta for more than 36 years, died in a hospital early last night after a three-week illness.

A native of Gwinnett county, Mr. Bryan came to Atlanta as a young man and has resided here since. He was a member of the First Street Presbyterian church and of the old Oglesworth Lodge, No. 655, F. & A. M. He resided at 50 Brown's Mill road, S. E.

Surviving are his wife; his mother, Mrs. Sarah Bryan; one son, H. E. Bryan Jr.; one brother, Clinton Bryan, and two sisters, Mrs. William Knight and Mrs. Charles Nelson.

Funeral services will be announced by Harry G. Poole.

LUMBERMAN INJURED

EATONTON, Ga., June 23.—(P)—Tom Hallman, lumberman, was critically injured by a saw here today. He was engaged in sharpening the saw, witnesses said, when someone turned on the steam. He was removed to a Milledgeville hospital.

NEW SHIPPING ACT IS SIGNED BY F. D. R.

500 New Merchant Vessels Will Be Built in 10 Years.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—President Roosevelt approved today a new legislative attempt to build up the American merchant marine. The bill he signed at Hyde Park is designed to help expand the commercial fleet to complement the larger navy.

Naval officers had told congress 500 new merchant ships should be built in the next 10 years, at an estimated cost of $1,250,000,000, to serve as naval auxiliaries.

The act liberalizes many provisions of the 1936 maritime act which substituted direct construction and operation subsidies for the former system of indirect aid in the form of ocean mail contracts.

The most controversial provision will set up a new maritime labor board to try to end labor disputes. The board will lack powers to force arbitration, but can mediate if both sides wish.

Among those mentioned as possible appointees to the three-man board are Robert Bruere, a Labor Department conciliation commissioner; Dr. Louis Bloch, of San Francisco, a maritime commission economist; Charles W. Sanders, chief of the ship personnel division of the Commerce Department's Bureau of Marine Inspection; and Professor Raymond Walsh, formerly of Harvard University.

Most of the new act was suggested by Joseph P. Kennedy, former chairman of the Maritime Commission and new ambassador to Great Britain.

U. S. FUNDS BUY VOTES, SENATOR DECLARES

HARRISBURG, Pa., June 23.—

(AP)—United States Senator Davis, Republican, Pennsylvania, criticized today what he called "open and brazen exploitation of public funds, gathered from taxpayers, to buy elections and purchase votes."

"In my opinion the American people will not stand for this," he told the Pennsylvania Veterans of Foreign Wars convention.

"Those who are making political capital through the partisan administration of relief and unemployment compensation funds," Davis said, "are striking at the very heart of the republic."

PERMANENT PWA URGED BY ICKES

Slack, Give Work
Asked.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes urged today that a permanent Public Works Administration be established to pull in the slack and produce employment at the first sign of business recessions.

The idea was advanced while PWA, now rated as a temporary, emergency agency, swung into the second day of President Roosevelt's lending-spending program. It allotted $61,342,356 in loans and grants to finance state and municipal construction of schools, bridges and other projects. This brought the two-day total of such allotments to $139,156,974.

Ickes told reporters that because PWA had studied many projects, it had 3,000 of them ready to go "the moment congress and the President gave us the signal." If PWA were made permanent, he said, it could be ready for similar quick action in any future depression.

"The way we have started this program convinces me that we should always have a backlog of projects," he said.

Ickes emphasized that applicants must act quickly to get requests for loans and grants approved within the 98 days remaining before application lists are closed.

'MILK TRUST' QUIZ APPROACHES JURY

Cream Manufacturers Ordered To Show Records.

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—Government investigation of an alleged "milk trust" approached the grand jury stage today.

Federal Judge Wilkerson issued a subpoena requiring the International Association of Ice Cream Manufacturers and 41 affiliates throughout the nation to produce records before a Chicago grand jury here July 18.

The grand jury, scheduled to convene July 5, presumably will hear evidence obtained over a period of a year by investigators attempting to determine whether a national dairy trust exists.

CHAMBERS RESIGNS HIS AUGUSTA OFFICE

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—Z. Sweeney Sikes today was named chairman of the municipal Civil Service Commission to succeed Colonel R. L. Chambers, who resigned because he was "tired of being called boss."

The commission has jurisdiction over police and fire departments. Chambers recently was criticized by Fire Chief John Kennedy in connection with an arson case.

Chambers said he was not resigning under fire, adding he had been chairman "long enough."

LEE COUNTY TO VOTE JULY 12 ON LIQUOR

LEESBURG, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—Lee county is scheduled to vote July 12 whether it shall permit legal sale of liquor under provisions of Georgia's recently enacted local option repeal act.

Previously restrained by court order from calling the election, County Ordinary R. C. Harris set the referendum today. The state supreme court upheld the repeal act in a decision handed down yesterday.

Deatur and Telfair counties are to vote on the liquor question June 25 and July 6, respectively.

Octavians Plead For Duke, Wally To Return Home

LONDON, June 23.—(AP)—A plea for the return to Britain of the Duke and Duchess of Windsor was voiced tonight at a dinner of the "Society of the Octavians," which met to celebrate the 44th birthday of the former King.

Cheers greeted reading of a telegram which said: "Thank you for tonight's dinner and good wishes, which we much appreciate. Signed, Edward."

The society, sworn to uphold the honor of the former monarch, was formed by Windsor's admirers shortly after his abdication December 12, 1936, to defend him "from all slanderous attacks" and obtain full recognition for his past services to the country.

Compton MacKenzie, British author and chief speaker at the dinner, denied any desire to "embarrass their present majesties," but declared amid cheers that those present "all agreed in love, devotion and loyalty to our former King."

MacKenzie criticized "this dastardly, dirty denigration (of Windsor) that has gone on for all these months." He added that statesmen, church officials, and ministers had done nothing to protect him. "Well, there he is and we want him back," the author said. "We don't want to send telegrams to France (where Edward now lives); we want to send them to Fort Belvedere (Edward's favorite house when he was King.) This country needs him."

LAWYER'S FATHER DENIES 'CHEATING'

Charges of Slayer Disclaimed in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, June 23.—(AP)—John Hancock, father of one of the two lawyers shot and killed in a courtroom shooting, today denied the charges of Arthur Emil Hansen, held in the slayings, that the attorneys had "cheated" him in a real estate deal.

Hansen, taken into custody after the shooting of J. Irving Hancock and Robert D. McLaughlin, told Sheriff's Captain Penrose the two lawyers "had cheated me out of everything I owned."

Hancock, a real estate developer, voiced denials of Hansen's charges. "It was willing to make a settlement time after time in such a way that Hansen could have reclaimed his property," he said. "He was not cheated. The judgment was honestly obtained."

SLAYING ATTEMPT DENIED BY YOUTH

Awaits Jury Action in Crump Political War.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 23.—(AP)—Sidney (Joe Smith) Queen, 20, listened in tight-lipped silence this afternoon while his counsel formally pleaded him innocent of a charge of attempting to kidnap Attorney Ben Kohn with a black-jack.

This curly-haired central figure in the bitter political controversy between forces of Governor Browning and the E. H. Crump Shelby county political organization heard City Judge Boyd order him sent to the county jail to await possible county grand jury action on a charge of assault to murder.

Kohn, a supporter of Governor Browning's bid for renomination in the August 4 Democratic primary, in which the Crump forces are backing Prentice Cooper, of Shelbyville, was not required to testify.

PNEUMONIA LEADS AS GERM DISEASE

Outranks All Others as Killer of Georgians, Doctors Are Told.

QUITMAN, Ga., June 23.—(AP)—Pneumonia outranks all other infectious diseases as a killer of Georgians, and in its treatment must be considered as at least 32 different diseases, Dr. M. M. Harris told the Southwest Georgia Public Health Association today.

Dr. Harris, director of the Waycross branch laboratory of the State Health Department, presented a report on newer knowledge of pneumonia control at the quarterly meeting of the association.

His paper said the death toll from pneumonia held true for other states as well, but that in Georgia the disease killed 2,948 last year, and over a period of years averaged around 3,000.

Serum Treatment.

He reviewed the use of serums in the treatment of various types of pneumonia and cited the problem of physicians, now that modern research has shown "old Type 4" was composed of at least 29 distinct types. Serum used for one type of the disease has no effect on another type, he said, and then described technical methods for quick determination of type.

Typing service is available at all three State Health Department laboratories, day and night, Dr. Harris pointed out, and added "it is hoped that technicians in all hospitals throughout the state can become proficient in the performance of this test so that typing service can be available to physicians in every community."

Use of sulfanilamide. Use of sulfanilamide as a new development in pneumonia treatment also was described, and Dr. Harris said experiments work indicated a combination of serum and sulfanilamide was advisable.

"This line of investigation is still in its experimental state and must be judged conservatively," he said.

Another hopeful side, he described tests of immunizing agents in the Civilian Conservation Corps and predicted successful development.

Hasn't Had Clerk.

"At times I have been health officer for a year or two at a time without even a clerk," he explained. "At such times the younger men benefit of a little exhibit" of various time-saving methods.

Dr. Fort showed younger doctors a 20-shot typhoid vaccine syringe. Filling a 10cc syringe with typhoid vaccine, he demonstrated how 20 children could be vaccinated without stopping except to change the needle each time.

Another labor-saving device was a dipper he designed for picking up wiggletails in the midst of thick floatage.

T. J. GROGAN DEATH TERMED SUICIDE

Funeral Services Will Be Held This Morning.

A jury under Coroner Paul Donohoe returned a verdict of suicide yesterday in the case of Thomas J. Grogan, 56, candy salesman, who was found shot to death Wednesday afternoon in a garage behind his home, 634 Cooper street, N. W.

The verdict was that Grogan took his life "while temporarily mentally deranged," police said. He had been talking with a brother only a few minutes before the shooting. Mrs. Grogan found the body.

Funeral services will be held at 10 o'clock this morning in the chapel of J. Austin Dillon, conducted by the Rev. W. H. Clark and the Rev. R. A. Edmondson. Burial will be in the Marietta City cemetery.

PRESS, RADIO, BAR PACT URGED BY LAWYERS

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—An "enlightened accord between those interested" was held out by the American Bar Association's committee on co-operation between press, radio and bar today as the alternative to legislation to control the press in connection with court trials.

"The press is justly fearful of any legislation which may appear to limit the freedom of the press," the commission said in its annual report to be presented to the bar association's meeting in Cleveland next month.

The committee said the freedom of the press could not be maintained without the freedom of the bar and vice versa.

LINERS HELD UP BY HEAVY MISTS

24-Hour Fog Covers New York Harbor.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—A 24-hour fog up and down the coast disrupted ship schedules, prevented at least two ocean liners from docking and caused one collision. Thunderstorms predicted for late tonight were expected to wash away the mists.

Arrivals of the liner Vulcania and the Excambion, both due this morning, was postponed until tomorrow. They anchored off Ambrose lightship.

The steamship Potter, owned by the Maritime Commission, and the tanker William F. Humphrey collided outside the harbor last night but each was only slightly damaged.

PAY SUBSTITUTE ASKED FOR COTTON

Co-operative Association Opposes Government Loan for New Crop.

NEW ORLEANS, June 23.—(AP)—The board of directors of the American Cotton Co-operative Association adopted today a resolution suggesting that an adjustment payment be substituted for a government loan on the 1938-39 crop.

Under the agricultural adjustment act the government may loan $2 to 75 per cent of the parity price of cotton. If a loan is mandatory, the regulation said, the minimum was recommended.

The government now has 7,000,000 bales of cotton in the loan. Other cotton brings the American carryover to about 13,000,000 bales. The carryover elsewhere is about 10,000,000 bales, making the total world carryover 23,000,000 bales, the largest in history.

Norris Williamson, of Lake Providence, La., president of the co-operative, said at present prices and a prospective crop of 11,000,000 bales, farmers will receive about $450,000,000 for the 1938 crop, or about the same sum received in 1932.

LATIN AMERICANS DESERTING LEAGUE

Nicaragua, Honduras Will Be Next to Quit.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—The republics of Latin America are gradually drifting away from the League of Nations.

The State Department had information today that Nicaragua would leave the League next Monday and that Honduras would depart July 10.

Guatemala quit Geneva May 26 and Chile and Salvador have given the League the customary two years' advance notice of withdrawal.

Paraguay left last year. Some years ago Brazil and Costa Rica representatives departed from Lake Geneva's shores.

Of the 20 American republics originally belonging to the League, eight have resigned or are about to do so.

NORTHWEST YOUTHS TO BE FETED HERE

25 Hi-Y Boys Will Visit and Tour City Today.

Twenty-five Hi-Y youths, representing high schools in the northwest, will arrive in Atlanta at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon and will be entertained by the Atlanta Y. M. C. A. until their departure at 7:25 o'clock for Berea, Ky., where they will attend the National Hi-Y Congress June 25-29.

W. A. Alsbrook, Atlanta Boys' Work secretary, said yesterday that the Georgia representative to the congress, Bob Thibadeau, of Duval Hills High school, will join the group on their trip tonight.

The youths, from Idaho, Montana, Washington and Oregon, will be taken on educational and sight-seeing tours of the city and entertained at a dinner, Alsbrook said.

"The press is justly fearful of any legislation which may appear to limit the freedom of the press," the commission said in its annual report to be presented to the bar association's meeting in Cleveland next month.

The committee said the freedom of the press could not be maintained without the freedom of the bar and vice versa.

MRS. D. J. M'DANIEL KILLED BY TRUCK

Atlanta Woman Struck Down on Bankhead Highway; Alleged Driver Held.

Mrs. D. J. McDaniel, 35, of 15 South Evelyn place, died at the Crawford W. Long hospital last night, two hours after being struck by a truck on Bankhead highway less than half a block from her home.

At the time of the accident, she was walking with her sister, Mrs. S. H. Greene, of Center Hill, and her husband who had just taken their 18-month-old daughter, Patricia Ann, out of her arms.

A man listed as Fred Prince, 34, of a Gun Club road address, said to have been driving the truck, was arrested at Bankhead highway and Gertrude place a few moments later by County Officers L. C. Clay and T. A. Gilbert.

They reported that J. A. Johnson, who was driving behind the truck and saw it strike Mrs. McDaniel, followed Prince and forced him to stop. Prince is being held at county jail without bond, charged with hit and run, driving a car while intoxicated and assault and battery.

Mrs. McDaniel was taken to Crawford W. Long hospital by County Officers G. S. Cannon and J. E. Roberts. She was suffering from a fractured skull, a broken leg, multiple cuts and bruises. She died without regaining consciousness.

On Way Home. McDaniel told police she had gone for a walk with her young daughter and Mrs. Greene and were on their way home. She took the baby from his wife and was walking in front of her and her sister. As he turned into South Evelyn place, he heard the truck and turned just after his wife was struck.

Mrs. McDaniel also is survived by another sister, Mrs. W. R. Daniel, of Atlanta. Funeral arrangements will be announced by H. M. Patterson & Son.

RAIL SLASH TALK DELAY IS ASKED

Labor Suggests July 20 as New Date.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—The Railway Labor Executives' Association asked railroad management today to put off a conference on a proposed 15 per cent wage slash until July 20.

The association sent a letter to H. A. Enoch, chairman of the carriers' joint conference committee in Philadelphia, advising him negotiations between labor and management on the individual rail properties were not completed. The carriers had suggested June 28 as a conference day.

The association advised Enoch that the rail labor heads representing 21 brotherhoods would meet the conference committee on June 28 if necessary, but in view of the unfinished negotiations on individual properties, asked that the wage conference be put off until July 20.

Adirondacks To Provide Setting For Delightful Family Reunion

By Sally Forth.

A PICTURESQUE camp near Lake Placid in the Adirondacks will provide the setting for a reunion of members of the Traylor family in August. Mrs. Thomas Dunham, of Miami, whom Atlantans remember most delightfully as the former Margaret Traylor, is eagerly anticipating the reunion with her sister, Mrs. Allen Putnam, of New York city, the former Dorothy Traylor. Mrs. Dunham, with her husband and two children, Peggy and Traylor, is now visiting her sister, Mrs. R. J. Thiesen, on Inman circle, and late next month the family foursome will leave for the Adirondacks. Mrs. Putnam, her husband and their son, Billy, will join them for a month's stay.

The only Atlanta member of the family who will enjoy the delightful vacation will be Jacqueline Thiesen, the young daughter of the R. J. Thiesens. Each member of the group is eagerly awaiting the pleasant days to be spent at the camp, which features tennis, golf, swimming and all sorts of interesting outdoor activities in the fascinating setting of the Adirondacks.

Billy Putnam, who is attending a preparatory school in New England, will have as his guests two of his classmates, and Sally Forth is sure a perfectly grand time is in store for them, as well as for the other members of the party.

When the month of play is over, Peggy will go to Chatham, Va., to continue her studies at Chatham Hall, where she was a popular student during the past winter. An Atlanta belle, Laura Shallenberger, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William F. Shallenberger, will also enroll at Chatham this fall and doubtless she and Peggy will often recount the good times they had here this summer during the latter's visit to Mrs. Thiesen.

HONOLULU and the romantic Hawaiian Isles will soon unfold their mysterious charms before the eyes of Dorothy Sanford and her mother, Mrs. John E. Sanford, who leave Atlanta on July 10 for the islands in the Pacific as their ultimate destination.

The pair will first spend a few days in Chicago, from where they will go by train to Grand Canyon, Colorado, for a few days of sight-seeing.

In Los Angeles they will be met by Margaret Manson, of Seattle, Wash., who accompanied them to Havana last spring and whom Dorothy visited last summer. The trio will board the Lurline on July 22 for Honolulu, where they will remain for two weeks. Mrs. Sanford and Dorothy will return via San Francisco and Yellowstone Park to arrive home the middle of September.

THE first time Dr. John Varner sent Theodore Davis flowers, he chose gardenias, not knowing that they were the favorite flowers of the young belle. After that first gift, the young medic "said it with gardenias" upon many occasions. He never varied from his choice of flowers—or his choice of girl, for that matter—and for the past several years "Teddy," as the youngest Davis girl is called, always received gardenias.

So, most appropriately, when the walks to the altar this morning to become Mrs. John Varner, "Teddy" will carry an enormous bouquet of gardenias, as her flowers for the all-important day in her life.

Mrs. Perkerson Is Feted Guest.

Mrs. Angus Perkerson, who leaves next week for New York from where she sails on June 29 aboard the steamer Washington or Europe, was honor guest at a luncheon given on Wednesday by her cousin, Mrs. K. G. Shaid.

The table had as its central decoration a miniature steamer and the place cards were tiny steamers in boxes with the names of the guests.

At the ends of the table were Bohemian glass bowls filled with red and white flowers.

Guests included: Mesdames Perkerson, Paul C. Crowell, Calvin Prescott, W. T. Perkerson, John R. Marsh, Berrien Moore, Harry M. Perkerson, O. B. Keeler, Ben F. Meyer, T. Sumpter Mays, Martha N. Kean, Miss Elizabeth Reynolds, Mrs. R. E. Lee Field and her guests, Mrs. Charles F. Curtis and Miss Helen Curtis, of California, and Mesdames J. F. Simmons, Howard Abram and Glenn Abram, all of Lithuania.

Crawford Long U. D. C.

Crawford W. Long Chapter U. D. C. met Wednesday with Mrs. A. H. Cochran, 1292 Gordon street, S. W. After the business meeting and short program with readings and talks on Flag Day, Jefferson Davis and historical events, Mrs. Mary D. Lake, a member who is the widow of a Confederate veteran and a charter member, was given a surprise shower, receiving many beautiful and useful gifts.

Mrs. Cochran's daughter, Mrs. Joe Haynes, assisted the hostess in serving punch, and a visit through Mrs. Cochran's gardens was enjoyed by the members.

Chatfield Says "Working Son Should Contribute To Upkeep of Home"

FRIENDLY COUNSEL

By CAROLINE CHATFIELD

Problems of general interest submitted by readers will be discussed in this column. Correspondents invited. Your name held in confidence. Write to Miss Chatfield in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Do you think a working son should contribute an amount to the upkeep of his home. MOTHER.

Answer: Yes, I think every working son should make a contribution to the upkeep of his home. Even if his parents aren't dependent upon his help, it's good for his soul to learn while he's young that three meals and a bed cost money which some body has to pay. He won't learn this readily if he has his living free and spends his earnings on pleasure.

Yet we must have sympathy with adoring parents who can bring themselves to take board money from their boy. We know how they argue; that it is their pleasure to provide for him, that they are so happy to have him at home they would gladly pay him to stay there; that responsibilities will come soon enough, in the course of nature, and now while he's young he's entitled to spend what he earns as he chooses. However, it's indulgence and not deprivation that spoils a boy and fond parents should remember this.

A wise old gentleman of my acquaintance says the first duty of fathers and mothers is to teach their children good morals; the second, good manners; and the third, mechanics of money. Could there be a better method of teaching a boy the mechanics of money than by requiring him to pay as he earns—if it's only a pittance.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Miss Chatfield: I always enjoy your column because it's so sensible; even when you are pretty sharp in your criticisms of people I have derived help from you. I am sure that your ideas have given me a larger outlook on life and helped me through many a perplexing problem. Especially good are your ideas about relationships between son, wife and mother-in-law. Your words of wisdom have had much to do with the warm and affectionate relationship that exists between me and my daughter-in-law. I learned from your column what it would mean to me if I met her half-way and so in the two years she has been in the family we have never had the slightest misunderstanding and dearly love one another. She says it is because I was sympathetic and fair to her when she and her son eloped and we met for the first time after their marriage. A FRIEND.

Barbara Bell Styles

NEW VARIATION ON THE SHIRTWAIST THEME.

If you're one of the thousands of smart women who simply wear by the shirtwaist style and crave a midsummer version of it that's refreshingly different—here you are! A youthful roll collar, sleeves puffed high at the shoulder, and bright touches of braid give this design (1529-B) a distinctly new and summery personality—and it's just as practical as can be. The front of the blouse is gathered beneath smooth shoulders to fill out the bosom becomingly. Otherwise it's perfectly simple and straight—easy to tub and iron. It's easy to make, too, thanks to the detailed sew chart that comes with your pattern.

This design will be especially pretty and crisp in gingham, percale, calico or dotted Swiss. Barbara Bell Pattern No. 1529-B is designed for sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 36 requires 4-1/2 yards of 35-inch material, with 2-1/4 yards of ricrac braid to trim the collar, cuffs and pockets.

Price of pattern 15 cents. Do not send stamps.

Send 15 cents for the Barbara Bell Spring and Summer Fashion Pattern Book. Make yourself attractive, practical and becoming clothes, selecting designs from the Barbara Bell well-planned, easy-to-make patterns.

Contestants Agree 1938's Bride Must Be Versatile

By LILLIAN MAE ROBINSON.

The clinging vine may attract a man, say followers of "The Toy Wife" contest, "but to hold her husband the woman of 1938 must have strength of character, efficiency and home-making abilities."

A cash prize of two dollars will be awarded to the winner of each of the letters published below. Read them for advice if you are looking for a 1938 husband.

Mrs. 1938 must "know the ropes" to hold her man. She must streamline her house as well as her figure and stay the day—a glamour girl at night—ready to step out and swing it or stay home and warm the fireside. Always on her toes, figuratively speaking—she is interested in life to become merely a toy wife. To win the prize, she must be able to handle her husband's affairs as well as her own. She must be able to handle her husband's affairs as well as her own. She must be able to handle her husband's affairs as well as her own.

Adorable Luise Rainer and Robert Young in a scene from "The Toy Wife."

Therefore, the bride of 1938 should be able to fall in with her husband's mood and be frivolous when he wants a frivolous girl and efficient and helpful when he wants an efficient and helpful wife.

Most men, realizing that life is more than kisses and romancing in the moonlight, want a wife who will stand up to him where they left off, should the financial machine go wrong. These women should be able to handle her husband's affairs as well as her own.

A man appreciates a well-informed, interesting woman, and a wife of keen intellect, sure of herself, unafraid, with clever ideas and ability to carry them out, is the best insurance a husband can have for mental peace and financial assistance, if the need arises.

It depends on the man's disposition. If he is the dominating sort, delighting in ordering someone else's life, if he is looking up to, leaning on, having his opinions regarded as infallible is vital to his ego, then the helpless, Dora-like, passive, shallow, would increase his self-important, protective instincts, and make him happy.

But if he is the fair-minded, far-sighted type who wants harmonious but spirited companionship; who appreciates keen, meritorious ideas, and finds broadening stimulation in intellectual discussion, who realizes that life deals blows that require skill, courage and endurance to meet without loss of love or morale—then the girl with executive ability, strength of mind and body, capable of acting efficiently, would be his perfect mate. He would have no fears of calamity to her, should he be incapacitated, for she would meet emergencies confidently, and carry on successfully.

From the numbers and numbers of the other letters received—most of them expressing distaste, if not disgust for the "weak sister" who would win a 1938 husband—honorable mention goes to Miss Lillian Bryant, 827 Forsyth building, Miss Betty Bowden, 40 Rockyford road, N. E.; Miss Ruth Stokes, 673 Boulevard, N. E.; Mrs. Tom Kirkpatrick, 250 Moreland avenue, N. E.; Mrs. M. S. Davis, 575 Orme circle, N. E.; Mrs. J. C. Smith, 363 Mell avenue, N. E.; and S. P. Woods, 130 Maxwell street, Decatur.

To each of these will be mailed a pair of guest tickets to "The Toy Wife," starring Luise Rainer and Melvyn Douglas, the MGM photoplay opening at Loew's Grand theater today.

Every day of a holiday, she gave away star sapphires, diamond rings, gold money clips. . . . Gary Cooper also gifts his crews with money clips—and, better still, puts money in their pockets. . . . Marion Davis, 250 Moreland avenue, N. E., has the most generous of all the stars who keep on the right side of those who can make or mar them.

At the end of her last picture, she gave away 60 diamond and platinum watches (the cost about $800 each) and in addition gifted Director Bobby Connolly with a car.

Genevieve Tobin, wrongfully linked with Everett Crosby (who is going to marry Florence George) tells this story of her first Hollywood premier. Her escort was Carl Laemmle Jr. She thought she looked pretty nice in her white gown until Laemmle said, "Where's your ermine cape?" "In New York," replied Miss Tobin. "My God," groaned Carl—"everyone will be there—aren't you a mink coat—or something?" "Yes," replied Genevieve, "but they're in New York, too."

Your Figure, Madame!

By IDA JEAN KAIN.

DON'T DESTROY THE VITAMINS!

Some of the most efficient housewives unwittingly destroy the vitamins and minerals and serve their families foods which did contain them. These protective elements are so essential to our well being that we spend a great deal of time planning menus and marketing for the foods that contain them, and we certainly do not want them to go to waste in the kitchen.

Of all the known vitamins, C is the most easily destroyed. It is affected by oxidation, heat and water. For example, when orange juice is allowed to stand overnight, a part of its vitamin C content is destroyed by oxidation. It is a mistake to prepare citrus fruits the night before for the next morning's use. Oxidation also affects tomato juice, and while it is economical to buy tomato juice in large cans, it should be kept covered at all times.

Household cooking rapidly destroys most of the Vitamin C content of vegetables except in acids, such as tomatoes. Commercial canning, however, preserves vitamins and minerals. The treatment of cans before heating and the use of steam to drive the air from the vacuum containers saves the protective elements. Nutritionally speaking, the canned fruits and vegetables on the market are equal to the fresh products. The modern housewife who cooks with a can opener in one hand is no longer to be laughed at.

The old-fashioned method of cooking in an open vessel destroyed most of the vitamin C, but new methods of canning, where the food is heated without contact with the air, prevents any great loss of the vitamin.

In the preparation of a meal it is all too easy to toss the vitamins down the drain. Many of the vitamins as well as the minerals dissolve in water and are poured down the sink when the cooking water is drained off. Vitamins B and C and the minerals calcium and phosphorus dissolve in water and are therefore apt to be thrown away. Vegetables should be cooked quickly and in as little water as possible and the water should be used for soups and broths. Also the water in which vegetables are canned should be utilized, not thrown away.

But if he is the fair-minded, far-sighted type who wants harmonious but spirited companionship; who appreciates keen, meritorious ideas, and finds broadening stimulation in intellectual discussion, who realizes that life deals blows that require skill, courage and endurance to meet without loss of love or morale—then the girl with executive ability, strength of mind and body, capable of acting efficiently, would be his perfect mate. Foundation Cream, Powder, Lipstick

And Lotion Especially for Summer Weather

By LILLIAN MAE.

Whether or not you are a sun-loving person, there is no escaping its burning rays during the next several weeks, so we might as well make up our minds to go ahead with out-of-doors activities fortified by the various items our friends the cosmetic manufacturers are so kindly supplying.

There is a new foundation cream—an anti-sunburn foundation cream—which is a lovely fine-textured powder base. To it has been added an ingredient which screens out the wicked rays that cause redness and burning. A boon to drivers and sportsmen—as well as sportswomen—it prevents that red, baked lobster look, during a day out-of-doors. Women love it for the exposed "v" of the throat as well as for facial makeup foundation. Golfers love it for the back of the neck. It is a boon to bald heads. A non-greasy, easily absorbed cream, it forms a protective film which cannot be detected, and holds makeup well.

Naturally, light-tinted face powders should be put aside during the summer, in favor of shades which blend with a summer complexion. I have found one which, although not new as a powder, inasmuch as it has been a standard for many years, is now available in a tint which is neither light nor dark, but which can be worn well by either blonde or brunette. It leaves a soft, satiny effect, and clings for hours and hours, without caking. It is particularly good used with the anti-sunburn foundation mentioned above.

As an accompaniment to the powder suggested, there is a lipstick in a lovely, lovable deep red which gives to lips a healthy, natural, blood tint—just right for warm weather. It is attractive, too, in its blue and silver case.

Regardless of precautions taken against burning, it is always a relief to have on hand a soothing, cooling lotion to use after undue exposure. There is one which is just what your skin needs in hot, dry weather. It feels particularly cool on a burned, parched skin, and its repeated use will prevent peeling and blistering. With the lotion at the present time, there is packaged a cellophane-wrapped bandana free. Need I enumerate the uses for the bandana?

Phone me at the office of The Constitution for further information on these sunburn preventives and remedies, which you will be needing whether you are going on vacation, or just staying in town. If you do not live in Atlanta, write me, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope for reply.

At Their Bright Best.

Yet we're guilty of inflicting the same punishment on our guests. The gardens in our neighborhood are at their most gorgeous beauty now, and so we spent all yesterday afternoon driving our company around to see our favorite spots and waiting for their exclamations.

Well, anyway we picked up this bright idea which even our wretched guests would pick up to see. 'Twas a corner of a brick terrace furnished with barrels, nothing more or less, but painted all in white with green bands. The table had a barrel for its base with a square top made of wide planks painted white. The chairs were made of barrel frames cut out to form a back and supplied with a cross piece and a cushion. One barrel stood on its side with braces underneath to keep it from rolling. It was filled with dirt and had an opening for plants to grow in. Several barrels were cut down into tubs for shrubs, and others were cut down and braced for stools. When cushions were added they were green, and as we said all the barrels were painted white with green bandings. Picture that against a red brick terrace surrounded by flowering shrubs, and you have something!

A Handy Son.

As pleasant an outdoor grouping as we saw included a rustic arbor with table and chairs of natural unfinished hickory. We have a friend with a manual training son who made her a table and chairs out of a stack of little trees or saplings that were cut down when underbrush was cleared out of a patch of woods close to town.

We've still got a weakness for old-time willow furniture for summer. It seems so homely and serene somehow. And at peace with life. Left in a natural state, or stained, it sinks pleasantly into the picture. Painted in a crisp white, it even perks up and seems quite stylish. Especially with red and white awning striped cushions.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Sodium Citrate is Right.

When I sent to the drug store for one ounce of citrate of soda, to make up the Fool Proof Cough Medicine, they sent me sodium citrate. I suppose it is the same thing. I want to be sure. (Mrs. T. P.)

Answer—Yes, sodium citrate is the right name for citrate of soda, just as sodium bicarbonate is the right name for bicarbonate of soda. Sodium citrate was formerly used in the modification of milk for infants, so it is a pretty safe medicine.

Injection Treatment.

Following a suggestion in one of your good articles I had the injection treatment for piles. Allow me quite stylish. Especially with red and white awning striped cushions.

MY DAY

By Eleanor Roosevelt

NEW YORK CITY.—I watched my husband play bridge Monday night. It is something he rarely does and so his game is always worthy of attention, but in consequence we did not get to bed until nearly midnight!

However, before 6 yesterday morning, I was wide awake. Only the knowledge that every body else in the house would object to being disturbed, kept me from waking the rest of the household and telling them this was the hour when a June day should really be enjoyed! This June weather is very beautiful, especially in the early morning. I sat up in bed and read until I could bear it no longer, and 8:15 found me downstairs breakfasting alone.

Franklin Jr.'s dogs have become everyone's pets and now have the run of the house. My mother-in-law has a Pekinese and everyone chuckled yesterday because the Pekinese had routed both the big dogs. They didn't even stand their ground, they retreated in disorder when the little mite snarled and darted after them!

All the younger members of the family had a picnic lunch with me yesterday, for my band was receiving the delegation which presented him with the check that represented the proceeds of last January's birthday balls. He promptly handed it back to the custodians of the foundation which will now do scientific research on infantile paralysis, and assist wherever possible in periods of need.

I returned from the hospital about 20 minutes before lunch. I had telephoned to have my chair fired for broiling, but forgot that my husband had never dealt with that particular fire. I found Miss Cook starting the fire just when it ought to have been down to nice, glowing coals, but the family was late so I need not have worried.

The family brought Ambassador Kennedy with them, for he had been talking and missed the train he had intended to take. He seemed to enjoy our strawberries and agreed with me that, good as is the English strawberry, it has not the same flavor as our hardy outdoor product, though it looks so much finer.

I returned to the hospital in the afternoon. In spite of the warm day, Mrs. Scheider was feeling well and she has been promised that in another two days she will be sitting up. Mrs. Somerville and I were busy on mail, but we finished in time for a swim before dinner.

A short visit to the hospital this morning before taking the train to New York where I have done a number of errands. I must say cities have no real charm for me in the summer!

Miss Gray Marries Harry E. Knight

COLUMBUS, Ga., June 23.—Announcement is made by Mrs. Elmer Gray, of Tampa, Fla., formerly of Columbus, of the marriage of her daughter, Genevieve, to Harry Eton Knight, of Columbus, on June 17, at St. John's Episcopal cathedral in Tampa.

The bride is a member of an old Columbus family. She is the granddaughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. M. E. Gray and it was at the home of her grandmother, the former Miss Alice Tyler, that the Ladies' Memorial Association, instigator of the south-wide celebration of April 26 as Confederate Memorial day, was formed. The bride's father, the late Elmer Gray, was at one time a member of the South Georgia Conference.

Mr. Knight is the son of Mrs. J. T. Knight, of Columbus, and the late Mr. Knight, and is a brother of J. B. Knight Jr., E. J. Knight, Mr. Harden Horndon, of Atlanta, and Douglas Knight, of Atlanta. He received his education at University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Sigma Nu fraternity and is now associated in business with his brothers in the firm of J. T. Knight & Company.

After a wedding trip to Cuba, Mr. Knight and his bride will come to Columbus to make their home. Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Knight, of Atlanta, attended the marriage.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morris Ridley Jr., will board a southern cruiser today for a honeymoon in Caribbean waters, following their marriage which was solemnized at a late afternoon ceremony yesterday at the Sacred Heart church. Mrs. Ridley is the former Miss Clare Haverty, elder daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Haverty. Mr. Ridley is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank M. Ridley, of LaGrange.

The Rev. Father Edward P. McGrath read the marriage service which was witnessed by a fashionable throng of friends and relatives of the young couple who are representatives of two of the state's most prominent families.

Miss Irene Lettich presented a program of organ music during the assembling of the wedding guests.

Quantities of stately Easter lilies, combined with white snapdragons and silhouetted against a mass of palms and giant Woodwardia ferns, formed the effective decorations within the church. Banked against the rear of the altar, the backdrops of foliage extended to the sides of the sanctuary. Easter lilies and white snapdragons effectively arranged in long, low baskets centered the altars, and graceful white flowers starred the rich green background.

Palms were massed along the sanctuary and interspersed with floor standards topped with cathedral candles arranged in tiers. The bride couple knelt for their vows upon a white satin-covered prie-dieu garlanded with smilax and caught with clusters of valley lilies. Each pew down the center aisle of the church was marked with a white aisle post to which was attached a slender white cornucopia-shaped basket from which fell a garland of Easter lilies, white snapdragons and white sweet peas, thus forming a floral aisle through which the bridal party passed. The altar rail was festooned with garlands of smilax.

Acting as ushers were Dr. Lon Grove, Dr. Floyd McRae, Russell Bellman, Charles Rawson, Walter Douglas, of Savannah; Cason Callaway, of LaGrange, and Edwin R. Haas.

Miss Betty Haverty, lovely sister of the bride, was her maid of honor. She was a charming figure wearing a bouffant gown of lemon yellow net posed over a crisp tulle slip of the same shade. Severely untrimmed except for a small tailored bow at the front of the high collarless neck, the bodice featured short puffed sleeves, with the soft fullness confined across the back by a single row of shirring. Her straw hat of a matching shade featured a heart-shaped brim in front and was worn well back from the face. Royal blue ribbon banded the crown of the hat, the same tone of blue being repeated in Miss Haverty's round bouquet of yellow roses, shading from the deep hues in the center to the lighter shades, and surrounded by a fringe of deep blue delphinium. The bouquet was tied with satin ribbons to match her gown.

The bevy of attractive bridesmaids included Mrs. Edward Devoreux Smith Jr., Mrs. David N. McCullough, Mrs. Augustus H. Sterne Jr., Mrs. Rufus Darby, Mrs. Randolph Hearst, Mrs. Harvey Hill Jr., Misses Elkin Goddard, Emma Middlebrooks, Sasa Smith and Katherine Sellers, of New Orleans, Louisiana.

Their gowns of chartreuse green net were fashioned identically like that worn by the maid of honor, and their matching hats were similar in style. Completing their costumes were bouquets combining two shades of yellow roses surrounded by a fringe of deep blue delphinium, and tied with ribbons to match their gowns.

John Ridley served as best man for his brother, and the groomsmen included Rawson Haverty, brother of the bride; Charles Yates, Charles Wolcott, Charles Shropshire, Harvey Hill, John Piddock, Sam Dorsey, Dick Smith, Jay Glenn and Clarence Reese.

The beautiful bride entered the church with her father, Clarence Haverty, who gave her in marriage. She presented a picture of youthful blonde loveliness in her wedding gown fashioned of layers of soft white tulle over a foundation of shimmering white tulle. The bodice of her gown was cut with a heart-shaped neckline, and the sleeves were short and puffed. The long full skirt extended in the back to form a brief train, and a bouffant effect was achieved at the hipline by means of a soft drapery of tulle. An heirloom veil of soft hand-made lace edged with rosepoint lace and belonging to the bride's aunt, Mrs. Russell Bellman, was worn with the gown. The veil was gathered and held in place by a cluster of orange blossoms worn well back from the brow. Completing the exquisite bridal ensemble was a bouquet of white orchids fringed with valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Haverty entertained at an elaborate reception at the Piedmont Driving Club following the church ceremony. Several hundred guests assembled on the club terrace to greet the hosts, the bride couple, and the members of the wedding party who formed a receiving line, standing under the large oak tree which shades the west end of the terrace. The terrace was enclosed by palms and giant tree ferns, and here the floral decorations repeated the blue and yellow motif employed in the bridesmaids' costumes. A screen of palms and ferns flanked by floor baskets filled with yellow roses, yellow snapdragons and blue delphinium, served as a background for the receiving party. Floor baskets of similar flowers adorned either side of the shell at the far end of the terrace where the orchestra was seated.

Supper was served from an exquisitely appointed buffet table placed on the terrace. Covered with a handsome point de Venise cloth, the long table was entered with a huge silver punch bowl filled with roses and snapdragons in tones of yellow, and blue delphinium, with antique silver wine coolers filled with similar blossoms gracing either end of the table. Massive silver candelabra held tall white tapers, and other appointments were in silver. Punch and coffee were served at small tables, with the silver punch bowls embedded in mounds of yellow roses and blue delphinium.

Bridal motif featured. The bride's table placed on the rear porch of the club was exquisitely decorated in the bridal motif of white and green, with all appointments in silver. Centering the lace-covered table was the three-tiered wedding cake, beautifully embossed in roses and valley lilies and topped by a miniature temple of love. The cake rested upon a mound of valley lilies and swainsons. Brides' roses, snapdragons and gladioli filled the silver wine coolers which graced either end of the table, and massive silver candelabra held tall white tapers.

Miss Mary McGaughey and Miss Bolling Spalding kept the bride's book and Misses Jane Tuttle, Zaida Clay, Dorothy Grove and Hollis Rawson served punch.

Mrs. Haverty, mother of the bride, was modestly gowned in powder blue lace over a foundation of tulle. Her wide-brimmed hat of matching shade of French hair was trimmed with a lace bow, and her flowers were a spray of

Gardening Books Are Reviewed In Exhibit at Garden Center

Book reports on gardening books are submitted by the clubs during June, and many of these interesting books are on display at the Garden Center. "Flowering Dutch and French Bulbs," by G. M. Randall, was reviewed by Mrs. William L. Hunnicutt, for the garden division of the Kirkwood Civic League. In his book, the author discusses the culture of all varieties of bulbs. A report on "How to Arrange Flowers," by Dorothy Biddle, was submitted by Mrs. E. R. Harling, for the Atkins Park Garden Club. This tells the story of flower arrangement in plain, direct language that any amateur can grasp.

For the Oakland City Garden Club, Mrs. W. H. Elder reviewed "The Complete Garden," by A. D. Taylor. Mr. Taylor is president of the American Society of Landscape Architects, and spoke at the garden school held recently in Athens.

Mrs. Ruthford Ellis, of the Primrose Garden Club, reported on the instruction and inspiration she received from Margaret Pendergast's book on "Japanese Flower Arrangement." "Wild Flowers," by Homer D. House, was reviewed by Mrs. John M. Outler Jr., for the garden division of the Gaudin Hill Woman's Club. This book is illustrated with photographs of American wild flowers in natural colors.

A report on "Hardy Shrubs," by Frank A. Waugh, a simple handbook of practical information, was submitted by Mrs. C. J. Willoughby for the St. Charles Garden Club. Mrs. Sam W. Wood reviewed Mrs. Constance Spry's latest book, "Flowers in House and Garden," for the Lenox Park Garden Club. This book should be helpful for anyone endeavoring to get the full benefit of the garden in relation to the house.

For the Brookhaven Garden Club, Mrs. W. R. Gilbert reviewed "Landscapeing the Small House," by Edward W. Oliver, a guide book to help solve the problems of a small property owner. The book on the "Pleasures and Problems of a Rock Garden," by the late Louise Beebe Wilder, was chosen by Mrs. Charles F. Rice, of the Neighborhood Garden Club. The author's writings, based on knowledge and wide experience, have furnished inspiration to thousands of readers.

Garden club hostesses for the week are: Monday, garden division of College Park Woman's Club; Tuesday, Avondale, Crape Myrtle, Piedmont, Plains, and "make ups" by other clubs. Recent visitors to the Garden Center were Mesdames Zola Haralson, of Cusseta, Ala.; I. B. Sheffield, Robert Fuller, of Quitman; William H. Davis, of Gainesville; J. N. Martin, of East Bend, N. C.; Zebulon Walker, of Canton; Arthur W. Arnold, of Newnan; Eli S. Lewis, of Dawson, and R. A. Walker, of Abbeville, S. C.

NEW YORK, June 23.—This stock market has the Street guessing. It is not so much about the real turn in the market. The difficulty is to understand why a reaction has not made its appearance sooner.

In the old days, before the SEC was thought of, a rally of such extensive proportions as has been seen in the last four sessions, accompanied as it was by a great increase in volume, would have brought realization on a large scale and a reversal of trend, temporarily at least. Up to the close on Thursday night, that had not happened although the pace of the advance seemed to be slackening.

Of the various speculative groups, the bears naturally are the most worried. Some of them have accepted their losses, but others have held out hoping for a reaction that would let them out easier. A few profess confidence that the main downward movement has been interrupted only and will soon be resumed.

There has been a good deal of amateur short selling of late, selling by small speculators who seldom, if ever, took that side of the market before. These have been close to panic in the last few days and their disorderly retreat has accelerated the rise. At the other extreme are the interests who have been out of the market entirely, skeptical of the business future but not caring to speculate for the decline. They have been taken by surprise equally with the shorts but their only loss, if it is a loss, is that they have waited too long to use their idle cash.

Now they hesitate, hoping for a setback that will allow them to get in on better terms.

From the technical standpoint, the attitude of these two groups delays the reaction that they both hope for.

The rapidity of the rise is accounted for also by the meagreness of the offerings. The market was thin on the way down and it is thin on the way up.

While the transactions have crossed the 2,000,000 mark for the second time last December, the buyers have so outnumbered the sellers that prices were forced up hour by hour without a breathing spell. Probably, there has been considerable investment trust buying which has competed with accumulation of individual shares. It ought not to be necessary to say that this is an unhealthy situation.

TARZAN AND THE FORBIDDEN CITY No. 35

During the day's march, Magra contrived to speak to Tarzan privately. "Please abandon this pursuit of Thome," she pleaded. "He's treacherous. He'll kill you!" Tarzan stared at her sternly. "Is this another of your tricks to help Thome get away?"

The girl hung her head. "I know I have no right to ask you to trust me. Yes, I was Thome's spy, but not any longer. Since being with you I—I'd do anything for you. Please believe me. I'm warning you for your own sake. Let's go back!"

The ape-man fixed her with cold, grim eyes. "Tarzan rewards his friends and punishes his enemies! I shall bring Atan Thome to an accounting!" As if to emphasize his determination, he quickened his footsteps and urged his followers to move speed.

... But Thome traveled faster than Tarzan expected. Even Thome himself was surprised when Lal Task cried suddenly: "Look! It is Tuen-Baka. In side its crater lies Athair, the Forbidden City. Ha! We've beaten the great Tarzan to our goal!"

Margaret Maddox Battles Mrs. Butler Today in Golf Finals

EX-STATE CHAMP DEFEATS DANIEL IN TOUGH MATCH

Mrs. Dave Mitchell Bows to Other Finalist, 4 and 3.

By ROY WHITE.
Margaret Maddox, former Georgia and southern woman's champion, and Mrs. Colleen Butler, three times runner-up in the state tournament and winner of the Atlanta title for the past four years, will battle 18 holes this morning for Georgia's woman championship.

Miss Maddox, playing the best golf of the week, eliminated Miss Martha Daniel, the defending champion medalist from Rome, 3-2; and Mrs. Butler defeated Mrs. Dave Mitchell, wife of the former national public links champion, 4-3, in the semi-finals Thursday morning.

Both Maddox and Butler have been placed in the favorites' role for several days, but they were not expected to win by as large a margin as those recorded Thursday morning.

REGAINS FORM.
Miss Maddox has not played particularly good golf in the earlier rounds, but regained her old-time form in eliminating Daniel, the medalist. Maddox, shooting women's par and only three strokes above men's par, was five up at the turn.

Miss Daniel rallied on the back nine to cut the margin down, but

Bob Brumby Scoops

Marietta Boy on New York Paper First To Get Story on Severity of Battered Schmeling's Injury. Max Baer Next for Louis.

By Jack Troy

NEW YORK, June 23.—One thought, anyway, persists the day after the Louis-Schmeling affair. If they go through with plans to toss Max Baer in there against him again, Louis may equal the track record.

His time last night was a bit slow on a fast track. Lawrin, a rank outsider, went the Derby distance in a fraction of a second less than the two minutes and four seconds Louis required to pound Max Schmeling into what amounted to insensibility.

The one angle they all overlooked was that Louis was capable of such speed and that he was entertaining ideas of going out after Twenty Grand's mark.

Louis insisted he would win by a first or second-round knockout, but in the light of what had gone before—the previous fight he had with Schmeling two years ago—no one would believe him.

As seers, however, the managers of Louis were positively uncanny. Roxborough and Black predicted that the first solid blow Louis landed would decide the fight. They missed by only one punch.

Louis, on the other hand, missed no punches. Remember how, in the old days of slapstick comedy, they would speed up the movie camera and all characters would be shown to be moving at incredible speed?

Well, that's the sort of picture one got of him as he relentlessly bore in on Schmeling. Hands held just under his chin and feet moving in a rhythmic and fast shuffle, Louis moved right in and peppered Schmeling.

Schmeling retaliated with that one right to the head. It wasn't forceful enough to daze Louis, but it did bring out one very pertinent thing.

Louis had followed Blackburn's instructions well. Quickly his hands shot up in front of his face. Then, as Schmeling waited, indecisively, Louis suddenly smothered him with a barrage of rights and lefts.

It was all over then except the counting, and there wasn't much of that in the short space of three knockdowns. No longer can anyone contend Louis can't hit with both hands. Schmeling must have thought—if, indeed, he had a chance to think—that he had gotten in the wrong place, by mistake, and that a threshing machine was cutting him down.

PARALYZING BLOW ACCIDENTAL.
The paralyzing blow Louis delivered to Schmeling's back and which put the German in the hospital early Wednesday morning, was more by accident than design, it appeared.

Opening up with a fierce head and body attack, Louis aimed the right at Schmeling's stomach. Max twisted and the blow caught him full in the small of the back.

X-ray pictures made at the hospital revealed Schmeling was suffering from a fracture of at least one bone in the spinal column.

Bob Brumby, of the Marietta Brumbys and a sports writer for the New York Daily News, received a tip at approximately

ONLY TWO DAYS REMAIN TO WIN ALL-STAR PRIZE

Name Best Players in Southern League for Game July 1.

Only two more days remain in The Constitution's All-Star baseball contest. So, get out those averages, pencils, etc., and rush your entry to the All-Star Editor.

All entries must be mailed before mid-night Saturday. Remember the two big cash prizes and the three other awards. They all are well worth trying for.

Rules for the contest are simple. Merely clip the entry blank found on this page. Fill it out. Or if you had rather, use a sheet of paper and inclose the entry blank.

Pick out the players you think will represent the Southern League All-Stars in their battle with the leading team July 1.

In spite of the extremely close race in the league, entries have been pouring in. At present Emil Mailho, Russ Peters, Paul Richards, Tom Sunkel, Johnny Hill, Marshall Mauldin and Dewey Williams are Cracker players receiving the most votes.

Dee Miles, Ray Honeycutt and Walter Millies are the most popular Chattanooga players. Braxton, Rich, Schalk and Campbell, of Little Rock, are getting plenty of votes.

Bill Crouch and Parks, of Nashville; Clancy and McDougal, of Birmingham; Red Evans, of New Orleans; Warren and Manager Neil Caldwell, of Knoxville, and Monzo and Grace, of Memphis, all have been getting their share.

Competition is keen but all entries will have equal chances. So, baseball fans, mail your selection at once. Only two days are left.

BOBBITT, MOORE COLLEGE VICTORS

CHAPEL HILL, S. C., June 23.—(AP)—Jack Bushman, of Louisiana State University, and Russell Bobbitt, of Georgia Tech, won semi-final matches today and will meet in singles finals tomorrow in the third district N. C. A. A. tennis tournament.

Semi-finals doubles winners were Johnny Foreman and Carl Rood, of North Carolina, and Bobbitt and Bill Moore, of Georgia Tech.

Left-handed Moore displaying a fast service and well placed shots pushed Bushman, seeded No. 2, to five sets before Bushman won, 6-3, 2-6, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4. Bobbitt reached the finals by default over Joe Abrams, Tulane.

The combination of Bobbitt-Moore proved too much for Frank Fuller-Bill Rood, North Carolina, the Engineers winning 6-4, 6-3, 6-1. Foreman-Carl Rood easily dropped George Dunklin-Dick Henry, Virginia, 6-1, 6-3, 6-3.

Fort Benning Girl Star Loses in Jersey Meet

HACKENSACK, N. J., June 23.—(AP)—Milliecent Hirsch and Helen Germaine, both of New York city, continued their winning strides in the women's New Jersey tennis championship today with straight-set victories in third-round matches.

UMPIRE HURT.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 23.—(AP)—Southeastern league officials announced today Leo Enger, Southeastern league umpire, injured Tuesday night at Mobile, was suffering from a fractured vertebrae in the back.

ALL-STAR BLANK

Fill out your team and mail to All-Star Editor, The Constitution sports department.

The team shall consist of four outfielders, five infielders, three catchers and four pitchers. Pick on the basis of all eight teams. In case of a player being on the first team, he will be replaced by an extra player.

Reasons for the selection should not exceed fifty words. First, second and third place winners will receive cash prizes. There will be two other prizes. Deadline for mailing letters is midnight of June 25.

LOSER 'CHINS' GOLF BALL TO PAY OFF BET

When Jefferson Head, of 1101 Capitol avenue, bet on Max Schmeling to win over Joe Louis, he knew he would have to push a golf ball half of a mile over the College Park course if he lost, but yesterday the bet was more of a reality. Using one's chin for a putter is no fun, he decided, after crawling along on his stomach for three hours. John Cowart, of Chattahoochee, Ga., winner of the wager, is urging him on. Head had plenty of grit, but it was all in his chin, he insisted after the gruelling "goif match."

MAILHO CLOUTS NINTH HOME RUN AS BARONS WIN

Teams Meet Again in Ladies' Night Clash at 8:30.

BY ROY WHITE.
Emil Mailho, Atlanta's right fielder, took the Southern league home run lead with a drive over the second row of signs in right field, but that left the Crackers one run behind and Birmingham took the opening game of the series, 4 to 3. It was Mailho's ninth circuit blow, and left four players trailing with eight each.

Tom Sunkel will be Manager Paul Richards' selection for tonight's game at 8:30 o'clock in an effort to square the series and

Bryan Grant Enters Quarter-Finals of National Clay Meet

BITSY AND RIGGS WIN IN DOUBLES; SUTTER BEATEN

Toley Forced Defending Champion to 3 Sets Before Losing.

CHICAGO, June 23.—(AP)—Headed by last year's finalists—Bobby Riggs, of Chicago, the champion, and Joe Hunt, of Los Angeles, the runner-up—seven seeded players swept into the singles quarter-finals of the National clay courts tennis tournament today.

The eighth and only unseeded player still in the title running was Junior Coen, of Kansas City. Riggs, the nation's No. 2 ranking netter, had to go three sets to continue his chances for a third straight clay courts title. He disposed of George Toley, of Miami, Fla., 6-1, in the first set, dropped the second, 6-4, then came back to win the clincher, 6-3.

Hunt, the 1937 National junior champion who hopes to turn the tables on Riggs should they meet in the clay court finals again this year, skipped by Ernest Sutter, of New Orleans, 6-1, 6-3, after earlier defeating Bill Murphy, Chicago's city champion, 6-3, 6-2.

Bryan Grant defeated Chet Murphy, of Chicago, 6-2, 6-1; Elwood Cooke, of Portland, Ore., eliminated Edward Allon, of San Francisco, 6-1, 6-3; Gardner Mulloy, of Miami, vanquished George Pero, a fellow townsman, 6-2, 6-4, and Junior Coen defeated Chicago's Norman Bickel, 6-2, 6-1.

Seven doubles combinations including the Riggs-Grant, McNeill-Surface and Kovacs-Parker teams, reached the fourth round of this division before darkness stopped play. Cooke and Charles Hare, England's No. 2 player last year, also advanced, defeating one of Chicago's brother combinations, Shostrom and Shostrom, 9-7, 6-4.

Schmeling Suffers From Back Injury

cluding Joe Jacobs as American spokesman, forecast a rapid recovery and talked optimistically of "demands" for a third match with Louis to settle all question of supremacy.

The latest hospital statement, while saying Schmeling "must remain under observation for several days," gave no forecast as the ultimate period of recovery required. Medical authorities were as reluctant to make a guess as to whether Schmeling could attempt a pugilistic come-back as they were to suggest just how the injury developed.

The German's friends and handlers did not share the somewhat general belief of fight fans and experts that last night's knockout definitely put Schmeling out of the heavyweight picture, regardless of the eventual effects of his injury. They—the German's supporters—attributed his defeat primarily to being caught off-guard by the fury of Louis' first punching blast and traced his sudden collapse directly to the effects of a right-hand smash that landed in the region of the left kidney.

LANDS ON SIDE. This punch, aimed seemingly for the heart, landed solidly on Schmeling's side as he turned to "body block" the champion's attack.

It was the blow that the German said paralyzed him and made him an easy target for Joe's finishing blasts to the head. As a matter of fact, as slow motion pictures today showed, Louis landed not one but two terrific blows over the kidney. They were followed by other solid punches to the body and head, all before Max went down for the first of three trips to the canvas.

It was sheer speculation as to whether any single blow actually cracked the bone in Schmeling's back. More than likely, as medical men suggested, the break came on one of Schmeling's falls to the floor. The challenger was "out on his feet," grimly clinging to the ropes, before being knocked down. He was so far "gone" that he did not have the resourcefulness to take longer counts, on either of his first two knockdowns, and his handlers tossed in the towel to interrupt the count on the third knockdown before "ten" could be tolled over the stricken gladiator.

The charge, in Schmeling's behalf, that the kidney blow or blows landed by Louis were "foul" was quickly squelched. In behalf of the German, Joe Jacobs denied there was any claim of foul. Brigadier General John J. Phelan, chairman of the state athletic commission, also was emphatic in saying no protest had been made, but the general ordered a full medical report to be made to the fight officials.

NOT FOUL PUNCH.

Commissioner Bill Brown explained: "A punch to the kidney is not a foul blow if delivered from out in the clear, as in this case. The only time a kidney punch is illegal is when it is deliberate, as when the men are in a half clinch. Any punch delivered from out in the clear is a legal punch if it lands anywhere above the belt. When a fighter lets a punch go his opponent may twist or turn and so receive the blow in the kidney, but that's not the puncher's fault."

So devastating was the triumph of Louis, so complete his revenge for the 12-round beating he took from the same man two years ago, that Schmeling appeared only a remote figure in the future heavyweight prospects.

Southern League

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., June 22.—The Memphis Cubs vaulted back into fifth place in the Southern Association today, making the most of eight scattered blows off George Hockette and Ralph Williams for a 6-4 victory over the Cardinals.

The two teams clash tomorrow afternoon in a double-header.

WEST END GOLFERS HOLD SCOTCH FOURSOME MEET

could not keep up the pace and was eliminated on the 16th green. This is the first tournament Miss Maddox has played in since she was beaten by Dorothy Kirby at East Lake in 1934 for the city championship. In fact, this spring is the first golf for Maddox in several years, but she has steadily improved since the qualifying round.

Mrs. Butler was four-up at the turn, with a 40, four strokes over men's par, and continued to hold a safe advantage until the holes had run out.

Mrs. Mitchell, playing in her first tournament since moving to Atlanta last year, rallied on the back nine, but it was too late. The four-up advantage was too much to overcome in the nine holes left, and Mrs. Butler playing her best golf of the week.

HARD CHOICE. In today's championship there is little to choose. Both Miss Maddox and Mrs. Butler are showing an improvement with each day's play and should reach a peak in today's battle.

They have not met before, therefore no comparison can be made. Mrs. Butler has been knocking at the throne room door three times, losing to Dorothy Kirby, Mrs. Lippitt and Martha Daniel in the finals.

In Atlanta's tournaments, Mrs.

Afterward golf members and guests will be honored with a fish fry under the supervision of Sandy Mac Cochran, assisted by Jock MacMedlock and Angus MacThomas.

Ralph McGill, executive editor of The Constitution, who has just returned from Troon with his pockets filled with spicy Scotch recipes, has consented to prepare a Scotch dish and see that it is prepared in true Scotch fashion.

Adding color to the occasion, a number of members will appear on the golf course Saturday afternoon attired in kilts and every-thing. Prizes will be awarded for low score, high score, and draw score. There will be a driving contest for the ladies.

Butler has been more successful and has won four straight years.

Mrs. Henry Barrow, chairman of Druid Hills' tournament committee, and Harry Stephens have done a fine job running the tournament. They have not been called all week to settle an argument, and the 1938 tournament, though not as large with entries, has been one of the most successful in recent years.

Charlie Yates, British amateur champion, and Dorothy Kirby, former southern champion, will be honor guests at a luncheon at 1:30 o'clock at the Druid Hills Club.

Sanford, Horacek Win In Mixed Foursome Play

Dorothy Sanford, beaten by Margaret Maddox, in the quarter-finals Wednesday, and Joe Horacek Jr. were winners Thursday afternoon in the annual mixed Scotch foursome of the Georgia Woman's golf tournament.

Sanford and Horacek had a low gross 79, with Dorothy Kirby and Gene Dahlbender Jr., second with an 80.

First place in low net went to Dan Yates and Mrs. Jimmy Burns with a 76, with Mrs. Roy Burns, Columbus, and newly elected president of the Georgia Woman's Golf Association, and L. R. Hunter, placing second.

Miss Louise Suggs won the pitch-putt contest Wednesday with a seven. Mrs. A. J. Kaiser's nine was best in Class B. Class A driving honors went to Mrs. Dave Mitchell, Mrs. Vines won Class B.

RACE PROGRAM LASTS TWO DAYS

Another day has been added to the 1938 program of AAA auto races at Lakewood speedway, and Sunday, July 3, will be used for speed activities, along with Monday, July 4, as originally announced.

Hankinson Speedways will hold only one race meet in the country for the July 3-4 dates, whereas in the past it has been the custom to have one AAA race in the midwest, one in the east and one in the south.

A race meet held annually at Hohokus, N. J., will not hinder Hankinson in securing a great field, it was announced. His plan is to have at least three out of the 10 money winners at Indianapolis here. Chet Gardner, fifth in the big race, is already signed.

President Mike Benton, of the Southeastern Fair, has asked Hankinson to obtain Billy Devore, who finished eighth at Indianapolis. He would also like to have the 1938 eastern AAA point leader, Frankie Beeder, who also finished first in the Hankinson circuit as a July 3-4 entry.

"I hope he won't make trouble for you," Larry sighed.

"He can't. I'll show him that a contract works both ways."

"You'll have to encounter Muma first. What's she going to say?"

"She'll say, 'Bless you, my darlings! We had it all fixed up before you came home. She quite likes the idea of having me in the family.'"

"I didn't suppose anybody could be more sure of himself than you are, Clay. Have you noticed how hazy it is in the streets? Look at that corner light."

"Smoke. Must be that somebody is burning dry leaves on Sunday."

"I smell it, now," Larry said. "It's getting thicker and it doesn't smell like leaves... more like old rags. Maybe there's a fire somewhere."

"I believe you're right," Clay agreed. He sniffed at the air. "The streets look funny to me, too... sort of deserted. I'll bet you the town turns out when there's a fire."

"Oh, they do. Everybody. Grift belongs to one of the volunteer companies. He always has a fit when the bell rings. I hope it isn't our house."

"It isn't," Clay assured her. "You could see the excitement from here. Larry, do you mind if I take a turn down past the mill just to ease my conscience?"

"Of course not. I'd like to see where it is. Hurry."

As they neared the neighborhood of the mill, the murk thickened perceptibly.

"Damn!" Clay ejaculated under his breath. "Larry, if that fire isn't in the place, it's too near for comfort. I don't like the smell of that smoke, either. Your rags may be silk burning. We'll get the bad news when we turn the corner."

A sharp cry burst from Larry. She caught Clay's arm.

"Oh, it is the mill! It is!"

The road in front of the main gate was filled with a crowd that caused Clay to slow his car.

"Hey, mister! You can't drive here!" One of the town's two night police bustled importantly alongside, waving a stick. "Oh, it's you, Mr. Odell!"

"Yes. Please clear the entrance for me."

"Sure!" And the official began the necessary shouting.

"Seems to be mainly smoke," Clay observed, as he halted his car near the office. "Will you wait here for me, dear? I'll come back like."

"Oh, of course! Please, Clay, be careful. Don't go inside!"

"Don't worry," he called back, starting off on a run.

The first fireman Clay encountered was none other than Grift, a long rubber coat pulled over his white jacket. He had lantern.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Odell. You just get here?"

"Yes. How bad is this, Layne?"

"Oh, it's practically out. Ever see so much smoke? It sure was tough to wade through."

"Are you sure it's under control?" Clay was seized with a fit of coughing. "Where was it?"

STORIES OF COMMON THINGS.

V—Needles.

Next time you visit London, be sure to see the British museum! It is a wonderland to those who like to study things made by people of long ago. It contains thousands of relics from ancient Egypt, Greece and Rome.

However that may be, the needle with a hole or eye in it surely made sewing more simple. The "thread" may have been formed of the tendons of animal, or strips of twisted bark, or thin strips of rawhide.

It is a long jump from the Stone Age to our Age of Steel and Electricity. Yet with all the thousands of years which have passed, the general form of the common needle is about the same as it was back there in the caves.

Today we use steel instead of bone in making needles. Hundreds of miles of thin steel wire are chopped up by machines each year, and the pieces are turned into needles. In some cases the points are sharpened with hand labor, but the common way of making needles is to sharpen them in great numbers with the help of machines.

What would the Cro-Magnon folk say if they could come back and obtain a whole package of fine steel needles in exchange for a small coin? To be able to buy a spool of thread might be just as much of a wonder to them—and as to the coins with which to buy needles and thread, what magical things they would seem to be!

U. S. JURY WILL GET CHARGES OF FRAUD

Hay To Seek Indictment of J. R. Rossignol and A. J. Crocy.

Indictment of Joseph R. Rossignol and A. J. Crocy, members of the bankrupt investment firm of Rossignol & Crocy, on charges of violating the securities act and mail fraud statutes, will be asked by Isaac K. Hay, assistant district attorney, when the March grand jury convenes in United States district court Monday.

Rossignol and Crocy, who are at liberty under bonds of $1,000 each, are alleged to have violated the securities act and mail statutes through fraudulent dealings in shares of stock of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of New York during 1937.

The two already are under indictment, charged with concealing records in a bankruptcy hearing and of perjury in that connection. The grand jury also will investigate 12 other minor cases.

FRENCH ROYAL USHER COMES INTO GLORY

Maurice Cartère, of Paris, after a long career as plain usher at the foreign ministry of the French republic, has come at last into glory—halberdier of his royal highness, King George VI of England.

Resplendent in a uniform of braided livery, he will bear the royal halberd, long-handled broad-axe, at the head of the ushers' corps while the King is living at the ministry on the Quai d'Orsay during his state visit to France June 28 to July 1.

Cartère, for many years usher in the press service of the Quai d'Orsay, has been serving recently in the foreign minister's office.
